AN OPEN SWITCH FIFTEEN KILLED

PASSENGER TRAIN ON C. H. AND D. CRASHED HEAD ON INTO FREIGHT ON SWITCH

WRECK CAUGHT AFIRE

But Was Extinguished by Indianapolis Fire Department—Injured Imprisoned Several Hours

By Associated Press.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 13.—At least sixteen persons were killed and fourteen seriously hurt early today when an in-bound Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton passenger train ran into an open switch and crashed head on into a freight train in an Indianoplis suburb.

The train was coming from Cincinnati at the rate of forty miles an hour. The wreck caught fire, but was extinguished before any damage was done.

Most of the dead were found in the wreckage of the first car which telescoped the baggage car. The engineer of the freight train escaped by jumping, but the negineer of the passenger was killed.

Firemen and police worked at the wreck two hours before the first body was found. Holes were chopped in the tops of the cars and the injured supplied with water for which they cried pitifully.

The passenger train, No 33, is reported to have had a clear track, but the brakeman on the freight train did not close the switch after the freight cleared the main line for the passenger train.

The head brakeman on the freight train said the switch had been left open by one of his men.

Albert Seed of Louisville, one of the passengers told of his remarkable escape. He said:

"I was awake. I felt chilly and was putting on my overcoat, when suddenly I heard a crash and the next thing I knew I was sitting beside the wrecked train. I could hear men and women crying for help, and with the aid of others I found an axe and chopped a hole in the side of a car.

"Firemen soon arrived and began carrying out bodies."

The noise of the collision aroused the neighborhood. Many homes were thrown open and the injured carried in and given first aid treatment. The two engines were almost completely telescoped. They reared up when they came together and were so wrecked that it was not until after daylight that the body of the engineer of the passenger train was found in the cab He had stayed with the engine, trying to bring his train to a halt.

The baggage car was badly splintered and the two passenger coaches just behind looked like piles of kindling wood. They were completely telescoped. The entrance between the cars was so jammed that holes had to be cut in the sides and top to take out the dead and injured

"Father of Wichita Falls" Celebrates 83rd Birthday

Judge J. H Barwise and wife. (Mrs. Barwise died nine years ago).

The eighty-third birthday of Judge J H Barwise Sr. was celebrated Wednesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs A. H. Carrigan, corner Eleventh and Austin streets with a dinner at which all his sons and daughters were present together with their wives and a number of the grandchildren

Judge Barwise is the "Futher of Wichita Falls" being the first permanent settler on the site of the city. He came here with his family in 1880 Their first home was a two room house that stood on the site now occupied by the Job Barnett building There was no railroad here then and the country around Wichita Falls was one great pasture. For some time Judge Barwise was the only man of legal knowledge in the settlement and he drew up all the conveyances and contracts as well as arbitrated all the disputes of the little town. Later after the county was organized he served three terms as county judge.

Judge Barwise was born in Cincinnati later going to St Charles, Mo. From St. Charles he came to Texas settling in Dallas county and coming to Wichita Falls in 1880 where he has since lived.

The Barwise family has been an important factor in the commercial and social life of the city and in the early days the Barwise home was the center of culture in the little town. His wife who was a companion of helpfulness and inspiration in the trials of the pioneer life, died about nine years ago.

Judge Barwise is the "Father of Wichita Falls" not only in the sense of being a pioneer but also as the first promoter of the unselfishness community spirit which has done so much to make Wichita Falls the city it is. Judge Barwise in the early days was ready to contribute generously to anything for the advancement of the common interests of the town whether it was the building of a church or to secure a new railroad or a new industry, his contributions amounting to a considerable fortune. He set an example in this practice that has been followed by others and has made the spirit of Wichita Falls famous throughout the country.

Present at the birthday dinner today were the five sons and the daughter of Judge Barwise including Tom and Marshall Barwise of Electra; Frank Barwise of Dalhart; Joe Barwise, of Fort Worth; Myron Barwise and Mrs. A. H. Carrigan of this city.

CLEAN LANGUAGE CAMPAIGN ORGANIZED

Purpose of Movement Launched in Chicago is to Check Indecent Speech

Following the lead of Wichita Falls a campaign against profanity has been taken up in Chicago. A Clean Language League has been started there with the purpose of checking indecent speech. The Wichita Falls method is to yank a man into the city court. After Mayor Bell assesses the fine and gives the offender a talk it isn't necessary for him to join a league to guard his expressions on the street pretty carefully.

Officers of the Chicago organization say the tendency toward profanity has reached its heighth and blame lax public opinion.

SCHOLARSHIP RULE BEING ENFORCED

High School Rule Has Probably Weakened Football Team, But Has Made Players Studious

High school boys who do not "pass" in at least three studies cannot play on the schools athletic teams, since the Athletic Association was organized, and the force of this rule was keenly felt recently when four of the football players were barred from playing against Henrietta. The rule is to be strictly enforced and the boy who doesn't study hard enough to keep up can't be on the team.

Superintendent Carpenter has plans for organizing this and other high schools in this part of the State into an association or conference, to have football and baseball schedules and track meets. He believes that the other towns in this section will enter into the movement and that games will be increased both in quantity and quality, thereby.

Arrangements will possibly be made with the Childress team for a game here on Thanksgiving day with the Wichita Falls high school team, which will furnish good sport for football fans on that day

Out of sixty eight property owners on Tenth street who have been asked to sign the petition for the paving of that thoroughfare from Ohio to Denver only four have refused to affix their signatures and while little work has been done on the matter owing to other affairs the prospects for having the improvement made are considered good With the exception of seven or eight, all the property owners have been consulted about their paving and fully eighty per cent of them favor the paving and have indicated willingness to pay their pro rata of cost.

Final Ceremony Wed. in A Most Unique Wedding

The final link in one of the most unique weddings on record was forged Wednesday afternoon when Harry ten Brink of this city and Miss Helena Swartzs, late of Amsterdam, Holland went before Rev. Father Dolje and were married.

Although this ceremony completed the formalities required under American laws, the couple have, as a matter of fact, been married for a number of weeks—ever since each Ten Brink in Wichita Falls and Miss Swarts in Amsterdam—went before the authorities and signed a declaration of their intention to marry the other. Then, under the laws of Holland, Miss Swarts became Mrs. Ten Brink, and as a married woman, she was able to secure a passport from her native land to this country, something she would have had considerable difficulty in securing had she been married

Several weeks ago the young woman sailed for this country and was met at Galveston by Mr Ten Brink They reached Wichita Falls early this morning and this afternoon with the assistance of Father Dolje they completed the strange ceremony

The bride comes of a substantial Dutch family and is a winsome pretty young woman The groom has been here for some time being store keeper for the Wichita Falls Route here Mr and Mrs Ten Brink feel that there has been enough traveling for the present, and they will at once make their home in the Christensen cottage on Ninth street.

QUICK JUSTICE FOR MURDERER

MADISONVILLE MAN BEGINS LIFE TERM FOUR DAYS AFTER HE KILLED SWEETHEART

PARENTAL OBJECTIONS

Angered Clifton Plunket and Calling on Girl of His Choice With License in Pocket he Killed Her

By Associated Press.

Madisonville, Texas, Nov. 13.—Clifton Plunket, who on Saturday shot and killed Miss Irvan McWatters, a sixteen year-old girl, who had promised to marry him, was placed in the penitentiary at Huntsville to begin serving a life sentence shortly after midnight last night.

Plunket was angry at parental objections to the marriage When he shot the girl he had a marriage license in his pocket. In less than four days after Plunket had been arrested, he was indicted, tried and taken to the penitentiary. He pleaded guilty.

Plunket went to the home of John Ferguson Saturday and after calling for the girl, shot her with a revolver. The bullet struck her in the face and she turned and ran. He fired again and the second bullet passed through the girl's heart. Ferguson rushed into the room and knocked Plunket down. Plunket pleaded to be killed. Ferguson took him to Midway from where he was transferred to Madisonville on Sunday.

The indictment and trial quickly followed.

Mother Sells Blood to Buy Food for Children

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 13.—Deserted by her husband, with no money for herself and 7-year old boy twins, and herself ill in a hospital, a mother gave up a quantity of her blood in order to obtain funds for the boys' support

The mother is Mrs Ethel Brown, and the story of he rsacrifice became public today when Detective Thomas Quirk returned from Vineland, N J., bringing with him Charles Leroy Brown, the husband and father, who has been indicted by the grand jury here on charges that he deserted his wife and failed to provide for his family's support.

According to Detective Quirk, Brown last March deserted his wife and boys and disappeared.

Until about three months ago the mother worked to provide for herself and little ones At that time she was removed from her home to a hospital and in a few days was the mother of another bouncing baby boy.

During her illness her small savings had slowly dwindled until she had but a few pennies left, and it was while she was a patient that she sold a quantity of her blood for $25 in order to pay the board of her other children, who were being looked after by friends.

Learning one day that a patient in another institution was in a serious condition, and that the only hope of the surgeons was in transferring healthy blood into the body of the patient, Mrs. Brown offered to sell her blood The surgeons were notified of the offer and in a short time an examination of her blood was made

The result was that her blood was found to be very healthy and a vein in her left wrist was opened and the blood taken. Mrs. Brown stood the operation well and in a few weeks weeks was able to leave the institution

In the meantime the case of the mother and children was brought to the attention of the state's attorney and the husband was located at Vineland.

The authorities there refused to arrest the man, it is said, and after extradition papers had been prepared Detective Quirk went to Bridgeton, N. J., and swore out a warrant for Brown, then went to Vineland and arrested him and afterward locked him up in jail at Bridgeton, while he went to Princeton to have the papers honored by President-elect Wilson.

Mrs. Brown, 24 years old and pretty, said last night

"I don't know for whom it was I gave my blood. The operation took place in July or August last. Doctors told me of an ill woman who was in need of blood. I volunteered. Even though a local anaesthetic was given my left arm, I still felt the pain, but I wouldn't back out. It was all for my children's sake. I was on the operating table from two and one-half to three hours, I think."

A CITIZEN OF VIGOROUS CHARACTER

Death of R. E. Nutt Removed Man Who Embodied Best Traditions of the Pioneer Texans

In the death of R. E. Nutt Sr., Monday afternoon there passed a character that embodied many of the best traditions of the pioneer Texans. Although Mr. Nutt had lived here only a few years yet he was known to many as a man of great kindness and unerring justness.

In his extensive dealings here in the handling of his estate which included much real estate in the city he became known as a man of justness and absolute honesty. Friends who knew him intimately say that in his appraisement of any matter involving a moral issue his judgment was unerring.

Mr. Nutt was a young man when war with Mexico broke out and was one of a company of youths being drilled to go to the front when word came of the end of the war. He came to Texas in 1857 first settling at Bastrop and later going to the Beeville country where Mr. Nutt bought a big ranch which was the beginning of his fortune. He joined a Texas regiment in the Civil War and served the Southland well during those troublous times returning to his ranch after the war.

For fifty years he lived in the Beeville country and became one of the best known and most influential men of that section.

It was the custom of the family to celebrate Mr. Nutt's birthday, June 29th with a monster barbecue to which the people came from many miles around When Mr. Nutt moved to Wichita Falls this custom was continued on a smaller scale and there are many Wichitans who will remember these occasions with much pleasure.

As tokens of esteem there were many beautiful floral tributes on his bier when his body was taken to his old home near Beeville for burial in the family burying grounds yesterday. The body was accompanied to the train by members of the Masonic fraternity and the order of Knights Templar.

A special car was chartered to carry members of the family and other relatives and friends to Beeville.

RAILROAD COMMISSION APPEALED TO BY KELL

Asked to Secure New Construction of Interstate Body's Ruling

Austin, Texas, Nov. 13.—Frank Kell of Wichita Falls yesterday importuned the state railroad commission to enter into an active campaign for a reconstruction from the interstate commerce commission of its milling in transit regulations concerning the states governed by the western classification and other states in the milling section.

It was represented to the commission that the construction placed by the railroads on the interstate commerce commission's rule meant the end of the milling business in this section except at primary points, unless there is a reconstruction of the rules, for the present interpretation means a rate which is double what the rate should be or the sum of the locals.

There was held at Fort Worth a conference with regard to this matter. Sam H. Cowan and Senator Long are attorneys in the case asking for a different interpretation of the rules Mr. Kell has milling interests at Wichita Falls.

AN OPEN SWITCH FIFTEEN KILLED

PASSENGER TRAIN ON C H AND D. CRASHED HEAD ON INTO FREIGHT ON SWITCH

WRECK CAUGHT AFIRE

But Was Extinguished by Indianapolis Fire Department—Injured Imprisoned Several Hours

By Associated Press.

Indianapolis, Ind, Nov 13—At least sixteen persons were killed and fourteen seriously hurt early today when an in-bound Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton passenger train ran into an open switch and crashed head on into a freight train in an Indianapolis suburb

The train was coming from Cincinnati at the rate of forty, miles an hour The wreck caught fire but was extinguished before any damage was done

Most of the dead were found in the wreckage of the first car which telescoped the baggage car The engineer of the freight train escaped by jumping, but the negineer of the passenger was killed

Firemen and police worked at the wreck two hours before the first body was found Holes were chopped in the tops of the cars and the injured supplied with water for which they cried pitifully.

The passenger train, No 33, is reported to have had a clear track, but the brakeman on the freight train did not close the switch after the freight cleared the main line for the passenger train.

The head brakeman on the freight train said the switch had been left open by one of his men

Albert Seed of Louisville one of the passengers told of his remarkable escape. He said,

I was awake I felt chilly and was putting on my overcoat, when suddenly I heard a crash and the next thing I knew I was sitting beside the wrecked train I could hear men and women crying for help, and with the aid of others I found an axe and chopped a hole in the side of a car

Firemen soon arrived and began carrying out bodies"

The noise of the collision aroused the neighborhood. Many homes were thrown open and the injured carried in and given first aid treatment The two engines were almost completely telescoped They reared up when they came together and were so wrecked that it was not until after daylight that the body of the engineer of the passenger train was found in the cab He had stayed with the engine, trying to bring his train to a halt

The baggage car was badly splintered and the two passenger coaches just behind looked like piles of kindling wood They were completely telescoped The entrance between the cars was so jammed that holes had to be cut in the sides and top to take out the dead and injured

Judge F H Barwise and wife (Mrs Barwise died nine years ago)

The eighty third birthday of Judge F H Barwise Sr was celebrated Wednesday at the home of his daughter Mrs A H Carrigan corner Eleventh and Austin streets with a dinner at which all his sons and daughters were present together with their wives and a number of the grandchildren

Judge Barwise is the "Father of Wichita Falls' being the first permanent settler on the site of the city He came here with his family in 1880 Their first home wa a two room house that stood on the site now occupied by the Job Barnett building There was no railroad here then and the country around Wichita Falls was one great pasture For some time Judge Barwise was the only man of legal knowledge in the settlement and he drew up all the conveyances and contracts as well as arbitrated all the disputes of the little town Later after the county was organized he served three terms as county judge

Judge Barwise was born in Cincinnati later going to St Charles, Mo From St Charles he came to Texas settling in Dallas county and coming to Wichita Falls in 1880 where he has since lived.

The Barwise family has been an important factor in the commercial and social life of the city and in the early days the Barwise home was the center of culture in the little town His wife who was a companion of helpfulness and inspiration in the trials of the pioneer life, died about nine years ago.

Judge Barwise is the 'Father of Wichita Falls not only in the sense of being a pioneer but also as the first promoter of the unselfishness community spirit which has done so much to make Wichita Falls the city it is Judge Barwise in the early days was ready to contribute generously to anything for the advancement of the common interests of the town whether it was the building of a church or to secure a new railroad or a new industry his contributions amounting to a considerable fortune He set an example in this practice that has been followed by others and has made the spirit of Wichita Falls famous throughout the country

Present at the birthday dinner today were the five sons and the daughter of Judge Barwise including Tom and Marshall Barwise of Electra, Frank Barwise of Dalhart, Joe Barwise of Fort Worth, Myron Barwise and Mrs A H Carrigan of this city

Purpose of Movement Launched in Chicago Is to Check Indecent Speech

Following the lead of Wichita Falls a campaign against profanity has been taken up in Chicago A Clean language league has been started there with the purpose of checking indecent speech The Wichita Falls method is to yank a man into the city court After Mayor Bell assesses the fine and gives the offender a talk it isn't necessary for him to join a league to guard his expressions on the street pretty carefully

Officers of the Chicago organization say the tendency toward profanity has reached its heighth and blame lax public opinion

SCHOLARSHIP RULE BEING ENFORCED

High School Rule Has Probably Weakened Football Team, But Has Made Players Studious

High school boys who do not pass" in at least three studies cannot play on the schools athletic teams, since the Athletic Association was organized and the force of this rule was keenly felt recently when four of the football players were barred from playing against Henrietta The rule is to be strictly enforced and the boy who doesn't study hard enough to keep up can't be on the team

Superintendent Carpenter has plans for organizing this and other high schools in this part of the State into an association or conference, to have football and baseball schedules and track meets He believes that the other towns in this section will enter into the movement and that games will be increased both in quantity and quality thereby

Arrangements will possibly be made with the Childress team for a game here on Thanksgiving day with the Wichita Falls high school team which will furnish good sport for football fans on that day

Out of sixty eight property owners on Tenth street who have been asked to sign the petition for the paving of that thoroughfare from Ohio to Denver only four have refused to affix their signatures and while little work has been done on the matter owing to other affairs the prospects for having the improvement made are considered good With the exception of seven or eight all the property owners have been consulted about their paving and fully eighty per cent of them favor the paving and have indicated willingness to pay their pro rata of cost.

Mother Sells Blood to Buy Food for Children

Baltimore Md, Nov 13—Deserted by her husband with no money for herself and 7-year old boy twins, and herself ill in a hospital a mother gave up a quantity of her blood in order to obtain funds for the boys' support

The mother is Mrs Ethel Brown, and the story of her sacrifice became public today when Detective Thomas Quirk returned from Vineland N J bringing with him Charles Leroy Brown, the husband and father, who has been indicted by the grand jury here on charges that he deserted his wife and failed to provide for his family's support

According to Detective Quirk Brown last March deserted his wife and boys and disappeared

Until about three months ago the mother worked to provide for herself and little ones At that time she was removed from her home to a hospital and in a few days was the mother of another bouncing baby boy

During her illness her small savings had slowly dwindled until she had but a few pennies left and it was while she was a patient that she sold a quantity of her blood for $25 in order to pay the board of her other children, who were being looked after by friends

Learning one day that a patient in another institution was in a serious condition and that the only hope of the surgeons was in transferring healthy blood into the body of the patient Mrs Brown offered to sell her blood The surgeons were notified of the offer and in a short time an examination of her blood was made

The result was that her blood was found to be very healthy and a vein in her left wrist was opened and the blood taken Mrs Brown stood the operation well and in a few weeks weeks was able to leave the institution

In the meantime the case of the mother and children was brought to the attention of the states attorney and the husband was located at Vineland

The authorities there refused to arrest the man, it is said and after extradition papers had been prepared Detective Quirk went to Bridgeton, N J, and swore out a warrant for Brown, then went to Vineland and arrested him and afterward locked him up in jail at Bridgeton while he went to Princeton to have the papers honored by President elect Wilson

Mrs Brown 24 years old and pretty, said last night

I don't know for whom it was I gave my blood The operation took place in July or August last Doctors told me of an ill woman who was in need of blood I volunteered Even though a local anaesthetic was given my left arm, I still felt the pain but I wouldn't back out It was all for my children's sake I was on the operating table from two and one half to three hours, I think"

A CITIZEN OF VIGOROUS CHARACTER

Death of R. E. Nutt Removed Man Who Embodied Best Traditions of the Pioneer Texans

In the death of R E Nutt Sr, Monday afternoon there passed a character that embodied many of the best traditions of the pioneer Texans Although Mr Nutt had lived here only a few years yet he was known to many as a man of great kindness and unerring justness

In his extensive dealings here in the handling of his estate which included much real estate in the city he became known as a man of justness and absolute honesty Friends who knew him intimately say that in his appraisment of any matter involving a moral issue his judgment was unerring

Mr Nutt was a young man when war with Mexico broke out and was one of a company of youths being drilled to go to the front when word came of the end of the war He came to Texas in 1857 first settling at Bastrop and later going to the Beeville country where Mr Nutt bought a big ranch which was the beginning of his fortune He joined a Texas regiment in the Civil War and served the Southland well during those troublous times returning to his ranch after the war

For fifty years he lived in the Beeville country and became one of the best known and most influential men of that section

It was the custom of the family to celebrate Mr Nutt's birthday, June 29th with a monster barbecue to which the people came from many miles around When Mr Nutt moved to Wichita Falls this custom was continued on a smaller scale and there are many Wichitans who will remember these occasions with much pleasure

As tokens of esteem there are many beautiful floral tributes on his bier when his body was taken to his old home near Beeville for burial in the family burying grounds yesterday The body was accompanied to the train by members of the Masonic fraternity and the order of Knights Templar

A special car was chartered to carry members of the family and other relatives and friends to Beeville

RAILROAD COMMISSION APPEALED TO BY KELL

Asked to Secure New Construction of Interstate Body's Ruling

Austin, Texas, Nov 13—Frank Kell of Wichita Falls yesterday importuned the state railroad commission to enter into an active campaign for a reconstruction from the interstate commerce commission of its milling in transit regulations concerning the states governed by the western classification and other states in the milling section

It was represented to the commission that the construction placed by the railroads on the interstate commerce commission's rule meant the end of the milling business in this section except at primary points, unless there is a reconstruction of the rules, for the present interpretation means a rate which is double what the rate should be or the sum of the locals

There was held at Fort Worth a conference with regard to this matter Sam H Cowan and Senator Long are attorneys in the case asking for a different interpretation of the rules Mr Kell has milling interests at Wichita Falls

GIRL'S DREAM HAS TRAGIC END

DAUGHTER DREAMING OF ROBBERS SHOOTS MOTHER ABOARD SLEEPER

THE BULLET WAS FATAL

Mother and Daughter Were on Way to City to Buy Wedding Trosseau For Daughter

By Associated Press

Philadelphia Pa Nov 13—A speeding Pennsylvania railroad express became the scene of a tragedy today, when Miss Gladys Myers shot and fatally wounded her mother, Mrs Elizabeth Myers, having mistaken her for a robber

The shooting occurred some distance north of Philadelphia and the train continued on to Trenton where Mrs Myers was hurried to a hospital where she died

Mother and daughter were traveling from Salem Virginia to New York to buy a wedding trosseau for the daughter

Miss Gladys and a train passenger, Mr Cuthbert of Lynchburg Virginia were held by the Trenton authorities, pending an investigation

Miss Myers was so hysterical she could scarcely tell a connected story The police were disposed to accept her statement, that she shot her mother in mistake for a robber although contradictory statements made by Cuthbert and Miss Myers lend an element of mystery to the affair Cuthbert says he did not know the Myers and only volunteered his services to them after the shooting Miss Myers is said to have told the Trenton police that Cuthbert was traveling with herself and mother

According to the Trenton police Miss Myers said she sudenly awoke and heard a noise as if someone were climbing into her berth Believing she was in danger, she fired Her mother who was returning from the women's retiring room, received the bullet To the police Cuthbert said that he happened to be traveling in the car behind that occupied by Mrs. Myers and her daughter He said

'As the train approached the Delaware bridge south of Trenton, I went to the front platform of my car, intending to get off the train for a few minutes at Trenton I believe the shooting was entirely accidental As the train passed through the village of Coryden Pennsylvania, at 5 30, I heard the noise of a shot in the car ahead I quickly opened the door and saw Mrs Myers lying in the aisle in her night dress

Her daughter was standing beside her, shrieking in great distress 'I've shot my mother get a doctor,' she called She was hysterical We had trouble in getting her quieted The car porter the conductor and several passengers carried Mrs Myers into a drawing room compartment and we stopped the flow of blood as best we could until Mrs Myers was removed to the ambualnce at Trenton

'Miss Myers told me she dreamed a burglar was pulling aside the curtain of her berth and that she reached under the pillow, got the revolver and shot her mother Miss Myers said she was startled and fired before she was fully awake'

Final Ceremony Wed. in A Most Unique Wedding

The final link in one of the most unique weddings on record was forged Wednesday afternoon when Harry ten Brink of this city and Miss Helena Swartz late of Amsterdam Holland went before Rev Father Dolje and were married

Although this ceremony completed the formalities required under American laws the couple have as a matter of fact been married for a number of weeks—ever since each Ten Brink in Wichita Falls and Miss Swarts in Amsterdam- went before the authorities and signed a declaration of their intention to marry the other Then under the laws of Holland, Miss Swarts became Mrs Ten Brink, and as a married woman she was able to secure a passport from her native land to this country, something she would have had considerable difficulty in securing had she been married

Several weeks ago the young woman sailed for this country and was met at Galveston by Mr Ten Brink They reached Wichita Falls early this morning and this afternoon with the assistance of Father Dolje they completed the strange ceremony

The bride comes of a substantial Dutch family and is a winsome pretty young woman The groom has been here for some time being storekeeper for the Wichita Falls Route here Mr and Mrs Ten Brink feel that there has been enough traveling for the present and they will at once make their home in the Christensen cottage on Ninth street.

JOHNSON'S CASE TO SUPREME COURT

By Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 9—Attorneys for Jack Johnson held in the county jail in default of $30,000 bond, on a charge of violating the Mann act, will go to the supreme court in an effort to obtain the release of the negro, they announced tonight.

The contention will be set up that the Mann act is unconstitutional in that it deals with a crime over which states along have jurisdiction.

Meantime, Johnson probably will remain in his cell. Late today he was placed in a case with another negro. After vain efforts to obtain a place in the hospital ward by feigning illness. The physicians examined Johnson and thus diagnosed his case, "His only trouble is cold feet."

Immediately, Johnson was put back in jail.

Disorder among white prisoners in the county jail when they learned Johnson had not been locked up on the negro section of cells became so great that the turnkey took Johnson to the jail hospital until a cell could be cleaned out in the negro section. Johnson was disturbed by epithets hooted at him by other prisoners and by the necessity of being locked up with members of his own race.

PENCILED NOTATIONS ONLY RECORD OF LOANS

Estate of Waco Man Probated at Kansas City Showed His Great Faith in Texans.

By Associated Press

Kansas City, Nov. 9.—An administrative report of the estate of J. K. Zimmerman of Waco, Texas, who died in this state, October 6, was filed in the probate court today and values the estate at $1,140.24. The administrators found that $260,000 of this amount represented loans to Texas cattlemen in sums of $5,000 and $25,000 of which the only record kept was a pencilled notation on a slip of paper. All was found to be gilt edged.

Mr. Zimmerman died in this state. He was buried in his old home in Hanover, Pennsylvania. He was unmarried and often had told friends he never would make a will because of a superstition that once a will is made, death of the maker followed soon.

SENATE CONTROL IS DEMOCRATIC

FOR FIRST TIME IN 18 YEARS DEMOCRATS WILL HAVE BOTH HOUSES AND PRESIDENCY

HAVE MAJORITY OF TWO

This Number is Certain With Contests in Illinois, Tennessee and Michigan Undecided

By Associated Press

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9.—The positive announcement of the success of Harry Lane, Democratic candidate for the Senate in Oregon, assures Democratic control of the Senate of the next Congress, and places both branches of the National legislative body and the presidency in their hands for the first time in eighteen years.

The addition of Oregon to the Democratic list gives that party forty-nine senators, or a majority of two. In addition to the election of successor to Democratic senators now sitting, Democrats will displace Republicans from Oregon, New Jersey, Kansas, Colorado, Montana, Delaware and Nevada and will fill the vacancy in Colorado with a man of their choice.

The contest in Illinois where two senators are to be chosen and in Tennessee and Michigan remain to be decided. The Democrats make positive claims concerning some of these States, but whatever the result in any or all of them, Democratic control of the Senate is assured and the Democrats will be able to shape legislation if harmony prevails among them.

Poindexter No Longer a Republican

By Associated Press

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 9.—"The Republican party can no longer count on Senator Miles Poindexter, whether that party has a majority in the senate or not," he said here today.

"I ran for Congress and the Senate as a Progressive Republican. I suppose now I shall leave off the last word. It is my intention to start the next session of Congress as a member of the Progressive party. I declined to caucus with Republicans when they were strong and I fail to see why I should do so when they are weak."

Kansas Governorship In Doubt.

By Associated Press

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 9.—Capper, Republican candidate for governor, said tonight that official returns from eighty-six of the 105 counties gave him a plurality of 38 votes over Hodges, Democrat. At Democratic headquarters no figures were given out, but it was stated Hodges was leading in the official count and that the total vote would show his election.

California Seems For Roosevelt.

By Associated Press

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 9.—With 69 precincts in the State still unreported Roosevelt had a plurality tonight of 879 over Wilson. The count stands: Roosevelt, 281,641; Wilson, 280,765. It is unlikely that the remaining returns can upset the showing indicated by the present count, but the result of the officially certified count may be some different.

NEWSPAPER COMMENT USEFUL SAYS WILSON

President Elect Will Devote all Time Helping Him In His Listening Policy

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 9.—"Very useful and important, indeed," was the comment which President-elect Wilson made today on the array of editorials, statements and declarations from prominent persons being published in newspapers, advocating or opposing an extra session of Congress to revise the tariff.

"Are you going to take all these clippings with you on your vacation?" he was asked.

"O, no," replied the governor. "I've read them already. The newspaper certainly are helping me in my listening policy."

The attention of Mr. Wilson was called to an argument in an editorial that inasmuch as he had not received a majority of the popular vote and that since both the Republican and Progressive parties favored a policy of protection therefore the country had voted against tariff revision.

"That's good reasoning," said Mr. Wilson. "I've overlook the fact that many legislatures went Democratic which means Democratic senators and likewise that there were a great number of Democratic congressmen elected."

THIRTY REPORTED KILLED IN MISSISSIPPI WRECK

15,000 WOMEN IN IUNQUE PARADE

ENTHUSIASM RAN HIGH WHEN WOMEN SUFFRAGISTS CELEBRATED VICTORIES

TEN STATES NOW IN LINE

When Parade Was Over Women Mounted Platforms and Boxes and Made Speeches

By Associated Press

New York, Nov. 9.—Fifteen thousand women and men celebrated with a brilliant parade in this city tonight the recent addition of four stars to the women's suffrage flag. Through Fifth Avenue a stretch of brilliant flaming lights showed for miles the course followed by ardent "votes for women" enthusiasts from all sections of the country.

Each of the ten suffrage states was represented by women leaders in the equal suffrage movement.

"Ohio the Eleventh" read a transparency at the head of one of the divisions. When the parade was over women mounted platforms and boxes in Union Square and for several hours made speeches for "the cause."

Thousands of persons crowded about to listen. Several hundred thousand others watched the marchers.

The men's division was not the least interesting to the spectators. Led by the Men's League for Women's Suffrage, a large compact body of men bearing chrysanthemums was noticeable because of the number of college men it contained.

The men were lanterns in their hat on together, the spectacle was an even unique in the history of the city's parades. There was no review, as stand with distinguished persons to review the marchers as at regular New York parades, but the thousands who packed the street from start to finish of the parade were enthusiastic all over. Thus applause was constant in appreciation of the spirit the women were showing in their fight for the ballot.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—President Taft issued the Thanksgiving proclamation setting aside Nov. 28 for the observance of that day. The proclamation follows:

"By the President of the United States of America:

"A proclamation.

"A God-fearing Nation like ours will do well to set apart and observe upon a special day of festival and gratitude to the Almighty for the complete benefits it has enjoyed for many years. It has seemed to me fitting at the close of the term of the executive to call upon the people to offer their thanks to God for the manifold blessings we have had in the past and to make an earnest supplication for their continuance.

"The year has been drawing to a close in a manner notable to our fortunate lot. At peace within and without, free from the perturbation and calamity that have attended other peoples, rich in harvests so bountiful and in industries so productive that the welfare of any one of us has advantaged the whole world, thing on the broadest conservative lines the heritage of self-government is advanced to us by the wisdom of our affairs and from on the throne to concert that heritage unimpaired of rights improved by good use for our children and our children's children for all time to come the people of this country have abounding cause for contented gratitude.

"Therefore, I, William Howard Taft, President of the United States of America, in pursuance of a longer established custom and in response to the wish of the American people, in recognition of the goodness of the year, do hereby set apart Thursday, the twenty-eighth day of November, to be a public holiday for prayer and thanks to God for the good gifts that have been our portion and to invoke a blessing that this great nation may continue to enjoy.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington this twenty-fourth day of November, in the year of our Lord Nineteen Hundred and Twelve, and of the independence of the United States the 137th.

FREIGHT TRAIN CRASHED INTO REAR END OF EXCURSION TRAIN ON YAZOO MISSISSIPPI VALLEY

COACHES BURNED

Flames Break Out Among Dead and Injured—Blacks Vie With Whites in Heroism

By Associated Press

New Orleans, Nov. 11.—Thirty people are reported killed and more than fifty injured in a wreck on the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley railroad at midnight last night, when a freight train crashed into an excursion passenger train bound from New Orleans to Woodville, Mississippi.

The wreck was caused by a through freight train crashing into the rear of an excursion train of ten coaches. The two rear coaches were telescoped. Five of the coaches burned and many of the bodies of victims are believed to have been cremated. Most of the dead are negroes. The wreck occurred about thirty miles north of here near Montez, Louisiana.

Many of the injured are white. An official statement issued by the railroad company places the blame for the disaster on a brakeman who is charged with failure to obey orders and signal the freight train.

The excursion train left New Orleans drawn by two engines. On approaching Montez, one of the engines broke down and the engineer signaled to the brakeman to go back and flag the freight train, which was running twenty five minutes behind the excursion. The freight tore into the rear of the crowded passenger train at a speed of about thirty miles an hour.

Of the fourteen bodies recovered so far, nine were negroes and five white persons. The white dead.

MRS. VICTORIA MONTEUCE, of Vacnary, Louisiana.

MRS. JENNIE CONEAUX, Vacherie, Louisiana.

MRS. CHARLES GRECO, Vacherie, Louisiana.

MRS. THOS. GRUNNESS, New Orleans.

An unidentified white child.

Almost as soon as the collision occurred, the two rear coaches, which were telescoped by the freight engine, caught fire. The passengers who escaped injury rushed into the coaches and dragged dead and injured from the flames.

MASON BACK TO ANSWER CHARGE

COMPLAINT AGAINST OIL MAN ALLEGES FORGERY—H. A. OVERALL COMPLAINANT

ORIGIN IN LEASE DEAL

Civil Suit in Connection With Transaction Alleges Legerdemain and Alteration of Figures

To face a charge of forgery preferred by H. A. Overall, George W. Mason returned to this city today in custody of Deputy Sheriff George Hawkins. The charge of forgery is a sequel to the leasing of Overall's land by Mason which attracted considerable attention at the time.

An examining trial will probably be held this afternoon and several of Mason's friends have indicated a willingness to go on his bond.

The affidavit charging forgery was filed several days ago and requisition papers were secured for Mason who was then in Illinois. He was taken into custody Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Hawkins and immediately brought back to this city.

"They needn't have gone to the trouble and expense of all that," said Mason this afternoon. "I would have come back anyhow, if I had known there was a charge against me, and I expected to come back about the first of next month."

The transaction upon which it is understood the forgery charge was based dealt with the leasing of 337 1-2 acres belonging to Overall near Burkburnett and the particulars, as alleged by Overall are set forth in the petition in his suit against the Producers' Oil Company which purchased the lease from Overall. It was alleged that Mason altered the figures on the lease contract and that he pretended to tear the lease up in Overall's presence, giving the latter the impression that the deal was off. Later the lease was sold to the Producers and placed on record.

The drafts which Mason carried in payment for the lease when he left here were never cashed, he declares, being held up by a bank through which they passed.

Mason said this afternoon that he would probably waive examining trial and have the matter threshed out thoroughly before the grand jury.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon Mason's bond was fixed at $1000 pending his examining trial which will be held tomorrow at 1:30.

M'MANIGAL TELLS GRAPHIC STORY

MAN WHOSE CONFESSIONS BROUGHT JUSTICE TO OTHERS ON STAND

HOW HE BLEW UP "JOBS"

Tells of Carrying Explosives On Passenger Trains and Accuses Ironworkers' Officials

By Associated Press.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 9.—The graphic story of how he caused explosions carried dynamite in suit cases on passenger trains and kept the explosives at railway stations without thinking of danger to others, how he waited to place bombs so that night watchmen would not see him, and how from every city where he blew up a "job" he sent a souvenir spoon home to his wife in Chicago, were related by Ortie McManigal on the witness stand in the trial of the forty-five dynamite plotters today.

"Ping" an alias of Herbert S. Hockin, McManigal said, was the pass word he gave to labor leaders in various cities so they would know he was the man sent to do a job. He named Frank C Webb of New York, Michael J. Young of Boston, Richard H. Houlihan of Chicago, James Cooney of Chicago and Frank Ryan, all officials of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, as among the defendants beside the McNamara brothers who knew he was employed as a dynamiter.

At the outset McManigal asserted he attempted to protect the lives of people whenever setting off a bomb.

"I had been a member of the Iron Workers' Union since 1903," said McManigal, "and had worked in Chicago Milwaukee and Joliet, when in June, 1904 Hockin came to me while I was working on a building in Detroit Hockin said the executive board of the union had decided to clean out the open shop concerns and I was the man to do it

"He said, 'You used to work in a stone quarry and you know how to use explosives. You'll be paid by the union'

"I protested, but he told me if I didn't do as the executive board said, he said that I was boycotted against getting a job. I finally consented.

"Where to get the dynamite was the next question I decided to go to my uncle, William Beam, at Bloomville, Ohio, who had a stone quarry. I went to Bloomville June 22 and brought back to Detroit in a suit case thirty five pounds of dynamite, some fuse and caps.

"I told Hockin I had the dynamite He said, 'All right, you've got this far and you had better pull off the job'

"I went to my room and prepared three bombs Then I went back to the building and waited in the alley to see if the police were about Seeing none, I put one bomb in the fire box of the boiler in the building, another in an air-compressor and the third near the cylinder

'Joining the ends of the fuse at one point I lit all of them They were fixed to go off at about 1 a m It was then 10 p m I again looked about the alley I noticed a kitchen door at the rear of a restaurant open on the alley opposite where the bombs were and fearing some people might run out at the first explosion and be injured by the second or third I shut the door and put a barrel of garbage against it.

"Then I went to my room and waited to hear the noise It came about 1 o'clock Later I heard the newsboys calling 'Extra' It reminded me I still had some explosives in my room What did I do with them? I didn't dare go out with a package that would excite suspicion. So I took my dynamite to the back room and cutting it into small pieces flushed it out"

'Did you see Hockin the next day?' asked Mr Miller

"Yes, he paid me twenty dollars and my expenses to Bloomville He said I would be fully compensated for my work as the executive board had set aside a certain amount for each job but he said I must keep at it He said I would receive $125 for a job at first and I was to send a newspaper account of each explosion so he could get themoney from the International Union

'The clippings were a kind of certificate that the explosion had occurred."

Wilson Greatest Story Teller Since Lincoln

No man in public life since Lincoln has been more given to story-telling than the president-elect. One of the most effective in the recent campaign was his illustration of how he licked the bosses in New Jersey.

"It did not require courage to fight the bosses," he said, "after the people of New Jersey had instructed me to do it and after the bosses has discovered that I would do what I said I would. It was usually not necessary to do it after saying I intended to do it. It was like Davy Crockett and the coon. You know when the coon saw Davy had a bead on him he said 'Don't shoot, Mr Crockett, I'll come down.'"

Wilson also enjoys a good story for the story's sake, and is pretty sure to tell one or two during any general conversation to which he is a party. One of the best he has told recently is on his brother college president, Hadley of Yale.

'President Hadley was playing tennis and the bath tub was full of water waiting for him. when Mrs Hadley found their young son sailing ships on it She reproved him severely and sent him into the yard. He went out onto the street and happened to meet an old lady, to whom he said

"'The president of Yale will not take his accustomed bath today.'

"The old lady was astonished. The boy piped out again 'The president of Yale will not take his accustomed bath today.'

"'Why not?' she asked. The boy replied: 'Because I have the stopper in me pocket.'"

It is probably safe to assume that if the election had been left to the members of the Denver Press club Wilson would have been chosen unanimously, for on one of his visits to Denver he so endeared himself to the Rocky Moutnain newspaper men that they're talking about him yet. The crowd at the Press club reception to greet him was so great there were not seats for all, so the party sat about the floor, Indian fashion, and told stories the chief story teller being the governor of New Jersey.

As the evening progressed the stories got better and better and Wilson and his hosts got friendlier and mellower. The newspaper boys were alternating their stories with various liquids, carefully handing the governor each time a lemonade or a white soda or something else "soft" and not presuming to offend him by suggesting that he take anything stronger. After consuming three or four such drinks, Wilson glanced about the circle of squatted figures with a mischievous grin and said:

"By birth I am an American, by parentage I am Irish, but by thirst I am Scotch"

The crowd took the hint with a whoop.

When Wilson returned from the trip on a sailing yacht, where he wrote his letter of acceptance of the democratic nomination, he produced the following limerick, prompted by a week on the ocean.

I wish that my room had a floor,
I don't care so much for a door,
But this walking around
Without touching the ground
Is getting to be such a bore

The president elect's full name is Thomas Woodrow Wilson, but he has not used the Thomas since soon after he left college People who didn't know this were therefore astonished when at Gary, Ind., as the democratic candidate stepped onto a platform to make a speech a stout man jumped up, rushed over to him, hammered him on the back and yelled

Hello Tommy; how are you?"

"Tommy" was equally surprised, but he jumped the fat man's hand up and down, laughed happily and exclaimed

"Why, hello, Bob; what are you doing here? My, but I'm glad to see you!"

Bob was an old, old friend, ex-Governor Glenn of North Carolina.

At one of Governor Wilson's big pre election meetings I overheard this conversation between two women in the crowd that stormed the candidate as he entered and left the hall.

"Did you get to shake hands with him?"

'Yes, and it was no trouble at all Did you?"

"You bet He just reached right out, smiled and shook hands Why he's just like anybody else."

No incident illustrates more strikingly the prevailing opinion of the personality of Woodrow Wilson and the actual fact of his unconventional genial nature When he began his campaign most people pictured him as a reserved cold-blooded, aristocratic individual. The fact is, he's about as "human" as possible to imagine a man to be.

"It grieves me terribly" he once said to me, to realize that there are a lot of people who think that, merely because I've been a college professor, I'm a stiff old ass who does not know anything"

One day Wilson was making a speech in Indiana when a switch engine jolted the train a rod or two Quick as a flash Wilson said with a smile "I don't like to talk from a shifty platform. I'd rather talk on a platform that stays put—like the platform constructed at Baltimore."

Coming through New England one night the Wilson train stopped and a crowd in the half lights of the station called for him He stepped into the rear platform and somebody cried

"This W[illegible]ury, governor."

The [illegible] back, 'That's all ri[illegible] wound up."

But President-elect Wilson is not always the genial, good natured man indicated by these stories. His 'humanness" is complete. He has a temper. Usually, he keeps it pretty well under control, but he's just enough like other folks to lose it sometimes and get plain, downright, naturally mad. That happened once or twice during his campaign.

In one city he was halted by a reception committee in the lobby of a hotel, to wait a few minutes until the reception committee of another organization took him in charge. He had been making 10 or 15 speeches all day, traveling for a week on a train subjecting himself to being crushed by crowds, shaking hands with both hands for hours and otherwise indulging in presidential campaigning of the most tiring sort Instead of taking him to a quiet corner to wait for the other committee, those in charge had taken him into the lobby, where the crowd made for him. Wilson stepped into a side corridor, through an open door and into a vacant room. A committeeman beat it after him, grabbed his arm, started to drag him out and cried

"Here, you don't want to stay in the corner this way; you want to come out where the people can see you"

Wilson jerked quickly away from the committeeman, turned upon him, stuck his long jaw forward and snapped out:

"Now, my friend, perhaps I know as much about where I want to go as you do. I'm not such a plain fool as I look. When I came in here I came because I am free white and 21, fully capable of managing my own affairs and privileged to do whatever I please without any advice from anybody."

DANGEROUS BUT NOT HOPELESS

THIS IS THE WAY THE THREATENED EUROPEAN CLASH LOOKED LAST NIGHT

AUSTRIA AND SERVIA

In Controversy Over Servia's Access to Port of Durazco on Adriatic Sea

Paris, Nov. 9.—"Dangerous but not hopeless" is the way the political clash in which Europe finds herself is summed up to[illegible]at in an official circles in Paris [illegible] diplomatic controversy be[illegible]een [illegible]stria and Servia over the [illegible] Servia's access to the [illegible]e center of the stage [illegible]'s even the war itself.

Efforts at mediation have been postponed on account of this, as the complications retard the attempt to bring the powers into accord A hopeful feature in the situation lies in the knowledge that powerful influence is at work on both sides to induce the disputants to find a compromise for the vexatious question

Vienna remains the storm center of diplomacy and the question whether Servia will gain the Adriatic port of Durazco, on which she is marching and which is the goal of her ambition, is the rock on which the concert of Europe is most likely to be broken.

A dreaded auxiliary of war in the form of typhoid is spreading through out the army and may cost the conquerors and the conquered more lives than the bullets since neither of them has medical forces able to combat an epidemic.

Austria's Movement Suspicious

By Associated Press

Paris Nov. 9—Austria is sending to the provinces of Bosnia and Mersegovina or in other words, towards the Servian frontier eight battalions according to the correspondent at Belgrade, of the Temps

It is believed at the Servian capital the correspondent adds, that Russia and perhaps other powers will ask Austria for an explanation.

NATIONAL COMMITTEMAN SELLS

Any anaylsis or discussion of the amazing victory won by the democrats in the nation is incomplete, considered from a Texas standpoint unless it takes into large account the conspicuous services rendered the party by Judge Cato Sells of Cleburne Texas, member of the national committee.

While there is not record to show that Judge Sells was the original Woodrow Wilson man in Texas, there is abundant foundation on which to rest the statement that Judge Sells was the pioneer organizer. It was his success in the early preliminaries that later gave him the actual leadership in Texas and resulted in his being unanimously chosen as national committeman, the highest gift that the state democracy could bestow in national affairs.

When the early presidential lineup was beginning to take form, Judge Sells early demonstrated the political sagacity and personal charm which stamps the real leader. He was named to have charge of the Wilson forces in Texas. Against the tremendous odds of a dominant organization whose influence was for another candidate, Judge Sells perfected an organization which swept Texas with such unanimity as has ever before been known. Then came the Houston convention, which sent forty delegates to Baltimore instructed to vote for Wilson as long as his name should be before the convention.

In the actual convention work at Baltimore Judge Sells had a conspicuous part. His influence was by no means confined to the Texas delegation. Iowa, his former home, and neighboring states in Central West heard the call of Cato Sells, and as occasion offered they came to the relief and rescue of the hard-pressed Wilso nforces.

Following the convention Judge Sells attended a meeting of the national executive committee in Chicago and pledged Texas to the raising of $50,000 for national campaign purposes. It was a huge pledge, and there were many who seemed to think it had been made for effect and not for redemption. Those who so thought misjudged the man who made the pledge. He made it good. By personal and press appeal, by visiting all sections of the state, and by perfecting such a campaign organization as has not before been known in Texas, Judge Sells succeeded in having more money sent from Texas than had been promised.

Whenever campaign history is written in the future no democrat will be accorded or will deserve a larger mention that does the Texas member of the national committee. He has demonstrated leadership of a high order and Texas democrats will not forget him.—Houston Chronicle

Up to the hour of going to press the Hon. Jim Smith of New Jersey had failed to send in his congratulatory telegram to President-elect Wilson

Colonel Roosevelt can now put into execution his threat to write the history of Texas There will be nothing to disturb him for about four years, at least.

Captain Bill McDonald it is said is after one of the U S marshalships for Texas He will confer a favor, no doubt, on many applicants throughout the state by designating which one he is going to land

Hon W. H Atwell, United States District Attorney at Dallas, doesn't believe a Republican should continue in office under a Democratic administration, and will resign before the expiration of his commission

Let's see! This is the day the Republican National Committee was to meet to select a successor for the Republican vice presidency in order that he may share the honors with President Taft in receiving that measley even dozen electoral votes cast for the late Republican party n minces.

The election is now over and it is about time we were hearing of what was done with Gen Diaz the fellow who started something that looked like a revolt at Vera Cruz but which turned out to be only a clever trap set by Madero to catch some of his disloyal soldiers.

Hortense Ward, lawyer, of Houston, Texas, in a circular letter sent out to the press of the State, says the present laws covering the property rights of married women in Texas are unfair and unjust, and is urging the people to assist in the passage of a resolution adopted by the Texas Bar Association last July that has for its purpose the right of married women to have the exclusive management, control and disposition of their separate property and their own personal earnings, independent of the control or joint action of the husband and to make contracts the same as unmarried women, or women without guardians or husbands There is little doubt but that the next legislature should give relief in this matter As a general thing, Texas husbands are better than the present law governing such matters but it is often the case that a trifling man who has succeeded in marrying a fairly good woman with some property can make it uncomfortable for her though he may not contribute one cent to her support, and while the burden falls upon her to support not only herself but her husband as well, the laws of this state, as at present, will not permit the wife to make disposition of property in her own name without the consent of the husband.

A HOPEFUL VIEW.

The fears of a certain class of alarmists that a race conflict between the whites and the negroes is probable are not well founded. If statistics shown by census reports are indicative of the situation which will exist in the not far distant future—indeed, if these figures are to be relied on, the probability is that the race problem, whatever that is, if let alone by those who have been disposed to meddle with conditions in the South, will gradually disappear and in the course of time will solve itself in a natural way.

Failure of the negroes to keep up with the whites in the matter of increase in population and the constantly improving character of the negroes, tend to lessen friction between members of the two races. According to census returns, increase in population among the negroes is at a very much smaller per cent than among the whites In 1860, just one year before the breaking out of the Civil War, the negro population of the country was 4,418,430, and in 1910, fifty years later, it was 9,827,863, a gain of 122 per cent, while the increase in population among the whites during the same period was 203 per cent, a difference of 81 per cent in favor of the whites. But great as is this difference, the difference in the rate of increase during the ten years preceding the recent census was still greater In 1900 the negro population of the United States was 8,833,254, while in 1910 it was 9,827,863, an increase of 11 per cent During that period the white population increased 22 per cent, just double the rate of increase among the negroes.

At this rate it will, not be many years before the preponderance of whites will be so great that the negro race in comparison will be inconsequential. Even in the Southern States, in which there are now large negro populations, the negroes are falling behind the whites so rapidly that within a quarter of a century they may cease to be a problem, even in States like South Carolina and Mississippi, where the negroes outnumber the whites. In South Carolina, according to the last census reports, the negroes outnumber the whites 166,800, and in Mississippi there are about 20,000 more negroes than whites, but during the last thirty years the whites have increased, in South Carolina, 70 per cent, while the negroes have increased only 38 per cent, and in Mississippi the white have icreased 63 per cent, while the negroes have fallen 11 per cent short of this increase, which indicates that in these two states, the only ones in which there are now more negroes than whites, the whites will soon equal the negroes in population without taking into account the immigration into these states, which is almost wholly by whites

Another factor that is solving the negro problem in the South is the progress which is being made by negroes along ines of usefulness They are becoming home owners, they are adopting skilled occupations and are being educated along practical lines which fits them for responsible positions The day of the idle, shiftless, gambling negro is going by and the members of the race are fast becoming more useful citizens, due, in a large measure to the teaching which is being given by Booker Washington and other negro educators The number of negro farm owners is fast increasing and they are rapidly taking up other industrial pursuits, a course which is improving the race so, while the proportion of negroes in the South is diminishing, those who will be left will be a better class, and the result will be beneficial to the country —San Antonio Express.

THE 'MERIDIAN ROAD."

Second only in importance to the building of a new railroad or the establishment of a new industry was the success of Wichita Falls last week in routing the "Meridian Road" from Winnipeg to the Gulf by way of the Burkburnett bridge and this city.

This route is defined to become a great National highway of automobile travel and every year will bring thousands of tourists through the city. These tourists will not pass through without stopping as do those who travel by rail but the great majority of them will stop here to lay in supplies and to rest Many of them doubtless will remain here a day or so The town will be given splendid advertising by these tourists and the garages and supply houses and hotels and others will profit by their stay

While a strong effort will be made by other cities to have the route changed this will not be done until another bridge is built across Red River at Denison or some other point east and by the time this is done the route by way of Wichita Falls will have become so well established that it will be difficult to bring about a change

But one thing is necessary, that is that the roads must be improved and maintained in a good state of repair If this is done the likelihood of a change in the route will be slight. Wichita Falls has taken the proper course in organizing to see that this is done

The Position of Democrats.

William Jennings Bryan was the speaker at a Wilson and Marshall ratification meeting at Portland, Indiana Friday night. With his usual good humor he voiced the position of loyal Democrats everywhere in the following words.

"My only regret in coming to celebrate its victory, however," he said, "is that I find it difficult to adjust myself to new conditions. I have been so accustomed to striking upward at the enemy that I hardly know how to strike down at him. I am at a loss to know how I am going to act during the next four years."

"I am reminded," continued Mr Bryan, "of a story—of the fight in the country store They had separated the combatants, taking one fellow off another who was down on his back. When the fellow that was on his back came to he said, 'What did you separate us for? I fight better when I am on my back and I was just getting ready to go to work!'"

After the laughter subsided Mr. Bryan added. "I know how to fight on my back; I know how the Democratic party can act when in the minority. We'll have to pinch ourselves to realize it is really us. It's all so big that it seems that it might be a dream."

Mr Bryan then turned to the main thread of his talk, which was a review of the marvelous extent to which the Democratic party as a minority had impressed itself on the nation and had led it toward an age of better life and justice. "I am not going to speak of the golden age," he said, parenthetically, "for I had that yellow rubbed into me sixteen years ago so strong that I have jaundice whenever gold is spoken." (Laughter).

Mr. Bryan reviewed with great care the change of thought in the nation—the adoption of the election of senators by popular vote; the purification of politics and publication of campaign contributions; the changed attitude on the initiative and referendum; the national awakening on tariff and trusts, and, above all, on the control of the people's government by predatory interests—all things for which the Democratic party has stood and fought.

"If the Democratic party out of power," he said, 'could lead a nation to obtain such reforms as we have, what can be expected when we are in power? If in a minority we have been able to lead the majority, what can we not do when we are in possession of all the departments of government. Look back over the last sixteen years and you'll have to admit, whether a Democrat or a Republican of the elephant or moose variety, that in no period of similar length has one party impressed so many of its principles on the majority." This was met with great applause.

"And why," Mr. Bryan asked, "have we won?" He answered the question: "Beecause we were in sympathy and harmony with the marching spirit of the age."

Col Cecil Lyon will not have the pleasure of being chief distributor of Federal pie in Texas for the next four years, but it might afford him some comfort to assist in taking away pie from some of the fellows who are indebted to him for their positions. Inasmuch as they showed him the back of their hand at a time Col Lyon had every good reason to expect their support.

The election returns from the 100th representative district are somewhat delayed, but sufficient is known to indicate beyond a shadow of a doubt that the Democratic nominee for that office has been triumphantly elected. The Times therefore gives up in utter despair of Col Bill Edwards of the Henrietta Review finding anything to look real pleasant about for the next two years

NEWSPAPER ENGLISH.

Many high-browed pedagogues refer in a patronizing manner to "newspaper English" and some have warned ambitious young writers "not to injure themselves permanently by learning to write for newspapers" This is all piffle No English is clearer or more forceful than that found in the newspapers I venture to assert that the newspaper English of Kansas City is purer than that found in the staid old Atlantic Monthly No flourishes, no false steps, no superfluous adjectives the news story moves straight to its purpose, to inform

Writing for a newspaper, under proper criticism "is the best way for any student to learn the use of English, to cultivate accuracy of observation, and to develop a healthy interest in world affairs High school students will learn to apply correct principles of writing more quickly in a newspaper class than in a theme-writing class and at the same time they are dealing with facts of daily life that awaken keener interest in such allied subjects as history and economics

"The high school student who has learned to write a column of news for his local paper has not only learned to see what is going on and to judge quickly and fairly but also to tell the story simply, clearly and accurately—he has mastered the practical use of English."—Merle Thorpe.

It is persistently rumored that Senator Bailey contemplates resigning his seat before his term expires, which will be March 4 of next year, and in the event he takes that step, that Gov Colquitt will appoint Col R. M. Johnston, editor of the Houston Post to fill the unexpired term Hon. Morris Sheppard, who will be elected in January to succeed Senator Bailey, will not begin his term until March 4th, 1913 Senator Bailey's reason for retiring before the expiration of his term is his anxiety to again become a private citizen and resume the practice of law However, his rumored contemplated resignation lacks confirmation, and there may not be anything to it.

There are five applicants for the postmastership of Wichita Falls instead of four, as stated in the Times of yesterday In a note to the Times today City Tax Assessor Harry Robertson says he is a candidate also for that position. The Times regrets that it did not know Mr Robertson was an applicant, and if there are others it will be pelased to make the fact known. "The water's fine, come on in boys." Ladies are not barred.

ABOUT THE POSTMASTERSHIP.

So far as known there are only four applicants for the postmastership of Wichita Falls and their petitions are in circulation. The applicants are as follows: Alderman John T. Young, V. G. Skeen, St. Clair Sherrod and Ed Howard. Postmaster Bacon's term does not expire for about three years yet, and he does not contemplate resigning his commission, but this is not deterring the applicants in their efforts to land the plum.

Postmasters are not, as a rule, removed before the expiration of their terms, except for cause, and that may be interpreted to mean anything. In the case of President Taft "offensive partisanship" has been assigned as sufficient cause for removal in several cases, though the victim's offensiveness was no greater than that of being an enthusiastic Bull Moose supporter. If President-elect Wilson should take the same view of the matter the only cause he need assign for removal is that the holder of the coveted job is not a Democrat.

At any rate, the applicants here as elsewhere, are not going to allow the opportunity to pass, should the new president show as great desire to reward those who helped to elect him, as he and his able corps of campaign managers were in soliciting and urging them to help elect him president. Democrats are but natural, after all. They have an idea that the demand for a Democratic president carried with it the demand for a change of the personnel at the government pie counter. In this they may be disappointed, grevlously, perhaps, but they think they have a better right to hold the offices than the fellows who have them now, and are proceeding accordingly.

Factories, railroads and farms with good farmers on them build cities Wichita Falls has the factories and the railroads, and is reaching out for more of them. She is surrounded on every side by as fine a farming and stock-raising country as can be found in Texas, and all that is needed to double the population of both the county and city within the next two or three years is for her citizens to pull together in the future as they have in the past

Just at this time there seems to be a dispute as to what newspaper was the first to suggest the name of Woodrow Wilson as a Democratic presidential possibility By referring back to its files The Times finds that in its issue of November 9, 1910 (the day Wilson had swept the State of New Jersey as the Democratic candidate for governor), it picked him as a winner for the presidency That's the best it can do There may be other newspapers that were advocating the New Jersey governor as a presidential poesibility before that time

"No honest business concern or individual need fear my administration," is the way President-elect Wilson puts it, and that kind of talk has had much to do with allying the fears of those who had read the interviews given out by Mr. Taft, predicting all sorts of hard times, panics and starvation in the event the Democrats succeeded in electing their candidate Cotton, the South's greatest product, has advanced about $3 per bale since the election of Wilson

Wichita Falls already has two glass factories with the brightest kind of prospect for still another, which will furnish employment for a greater number of men than both the others combined.

Some of the oil men who had thought things would "go to pot" if a Democrat was elected president got the surprise of their lives on the day after the landslide when they learned the price of crude oil throughout the Mid Continent field had advanced three cents a barrel

And Mr Bryan! He looms up larger than ever before As a loyal Democrat he has disappointed those who have always fought him and by their opposition kept him from being president They are now beginning to see where they had misjudged the greatest of all great American statesmen

Those who cannot exactly locate Armageddon might do well to search the map and find Salt River and right near the head of that stream the place may be found.

The Kansas City Star says "The old parties died because they did not meet the demands of changing conditions." For more than a century certain principals connnbr pinro Lam certain pricipals enunciated by Thomas Jefferson, have been the basis of the oldest of the parties. The emphasis of these same principals won a tremendous victory for that party Tuesday. The Star is mistaken about the death of this party, at least.

It was wise of President Taft to delay his Thanksgiving proclamation He can now have a better idea of what the American people want to be most thankful for.

Cotton is now selling for 12c on the streets of Wichita Falls. At least one cent per pound was added to the price since th celectio, and according to the way epublicans have argued it, the Democratic vvictory should be given credit for the boost in price.

In the humble judgment of the Times, it ventures the assertion that the common run of Democrats throughout these United States are just about as anxious to cease receiving their mail through Republican postmasters as they are to have Woodrow Wilson succeed William Howard Taft as president, and if we may be allowed to make a suggestion it will be to the effect that it is not an axe the president needs to be supplied with after taking his seat, but a guillotine. It is possible and in fact it has already been hinted, that it is the intention of President Taft to put as many Federal office-holders under the Civil service before he goes out, in order to allow the Republicans to hold the offices but if that is done, there ought to be a way for a Democratic president, backed by a Democratic Congress and Senate, to knock such a scheme out. The Democrats have won this political scrap and they should, by all means, be allowed to enjoy the fruits of it.

AS TO POULAR CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS

The level-headed Charlotte Observer was not swept from its moorings by the delirium that prompts patriots to pass the hat. It says: "We have had but small sympathy for all this hurrah about campaign money The bulk of it goes to pay for expensive office rent in New York and elsewhere, and the employment of an army of clerks and typewriters, for the purpose of flooding the country with poppycock literature which few people read and from which the few who do read gain but scant edification. The time ought to come soon when each candidate for President and each patriot who expects to profit by his election should finance the campaign and stop this more or less sentimental robbery of the people" Editor Watterson aroused a torrent of protest a few weeks ago by suggesting that expenditures in a Presidential campaign ought to be limited to $500,000 The fact is that the newspapers, which do four fifths of the work, get no money and but little thanks.—Nashville Democrat.

It is a better plan for the people to finance their own presidential campaigns, rather than make the nominations and then leave their nominees without funds with which to make the fight. It has been clearly demonstrated, time and time again, that when campaign funds are not made by popular subscriptions, the big interests furnish the money, and they generally manage to own the man who their money elects to such an extent as to demand and get in return for the money they contributed, about a thousand dollars for every dollar it cost them, by securing legislation and laws that result in the building up of their already large fortunes. As for the newspapers they always have the brunt of a political contest, but the idea of a candidate for the presidency financing his own campaign will not work The people must continue to meet that expense, and it is by far a better plan than have the candidate they nominated to depend on a few rich men to finance the campaign.

It was Mr Bryan who first suggested the dollar contributions plan, and it has become popular. It arouses more interest in matters political, and causes the man who contributes to feel as if he had a little more interest than just that of walking up and casting his ballot It is not likely that the plan will be abandoned, and it will not be at all surprising that the other parties will adopt that plan for their next presidential campaign.

Anyhow, President Taft played the game fair and went down with the wreck of his party with colors flying. He's a good loser. No one will dispute but that he stood for what he believed to be the right. In his case, defeat, crushing as it was, has brought honor to him.

Of course the tariff will be revised, and that will be done just as soon as possible. The Democratic platform says so, and if our party leaders are wise they will carry out the pledge made to the American people.

We dislike to revive bitter memories, but in looking over our exchanges it occurs to us that some of them have revised their estimate of the statesmanship of "the New Jersey schoolmaster."

It's a long way to go back for a basic reason, but we believe one big reason for heavy or excessive judgments against the railroads is the discourtics and insolence or lack of accommodations the traveling public often meets with at the hands of railroad employes. On a train not long since, as an instance, a gentleman was reading. It wasn't more than 10 o'clock, but the officious negro porter came through and began turning down the gas lights. The gentleman politely requested the negro not to turn down the light under which he was reading. The porter mumbled something about the company requiring the lights turned down, and refused to accommodate the passenger. Now the gas that would have been used might have cost the company a cent. The incivility of that negro porter may, in time to come, cost it several hundred dollars. Such instances as this, many of them vastly more aggravating, are common. They largely account for the juries assessing heavy damages against the company when opportunity offers because one or more members recall that they, too, have received unjust or uncivil treatment that was wholly uncalled for. In justice to the railroads, however, it should be said that they are systematically getting rid of the uncivil employes. It usually takes only about one complaint of outright incivility or insolence to get the offender discharged. But there are too few to complain, for the class of employes who think the public is something to be endured and not accommodated has not yet disappeared from Texas railroads—not by a long sight.—Denton ecord and Chronicle

The Times has often thought that if the Texas railroads would try and give the traveling public accommodations for which it pays for, the railroad damage suit industry could be put on the blink a sight quicker than by hiring lobbyists to secure favorable legislation Texas people are sick and tired of Texas railroads bringing down from the North and East second hand, worn out and worked over passenger coaches and equipment for them to ride in, and so long as the roads continue to do this way they may expect to get the hot end of the stock when in court Without the least doubt, thousands of dollars are paid out wrongfully in judgments against railroads as results of damage suits, and the cause for these unjust and excessive verdicts in most cases are due to the fact that the railroads themselves have not used that care they should in taking care to give the traveling public that for which it pays a fair and just price.

2. To secure the enforcement of laws and ordinances against blasphemy and foul language.
3. To stop the public singing of ribald and suggestive songs.
4. To conduct a campaign of education in favor of clean language.

PICKING JURY IS A SLOW TASK

court sessions will be held to expedite the choosing of the jury.

Three deputy sheriffs were sent out to summon two hundred new talesmen. Only one additional juror was selected Wednesday out of thirty-five men examined. He was J. C. Gathler.

Judge Swayne adjourned court at 11.30 until 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when the two hundred new talesmen will report. Judge Swayne announced his decision to deal severly with men who discussed the Sneed case with veniremen or talesmen.

When J. J. Waters, a farmer, said that Joseph Nobles of Lakeview, whose guest he was when he came to Fort Worth to respond to his subpoena, had talked to him about the case, Judge Swayne issued an attachment for Nobles. Nobles was brought into the court room and admitted he had expressed his opinion as to Sneed's guilt or innocence, knowing that Waters was a venireman. The court rebuked him, made him promise to report any other similar violations and discharged him. Judge Swayne said

"From now on, I shall fine every man that talks to a venireman regarding this case"

Disinterested lawyers heard Wednesday that the defense will introduce entirely new evidence in the second trial, which was disclosed following the killing of Al Boyce Jr., at Amarillo Counsel for the defense denied this, but Cone Johnson one of Sneed's attorneys, limited that [illegible] new witnesses [illegible] test"

Judge Johnson urged Judge Swayne to order six hundred new talesmen, but the State insisted that two hundred were sufficient.

INCREASE OF 155 IN SCHOOL ENROLLMENT

An increase of 155 in the enrollment in the public schools over the same time last year is shown by the school attendance reports for the past month. The attendance at the close of the second month of the session was 1748, as compared with 1593 at the same time last year The percentage of attendance for the second month was 95.6

Following is the report of enrollment by schools, with the number of cases of tradiness for each school:

School—	Enrolled	Trady
High school	366	29
Austin school	627	28
San Jacinto school	318	11
Alamo school	198	41
Travis school	146	27
Washington school	100	27

The increase in enrollment is considered very gratifying, being about ten per cent over last year.

DRAPERIES have the DAY

Draped Effects and Narrow Skirts Cleverly Combined

Draperies do not Always Cover the Hips

A Graceful Mode of Draping Chiffon Below the Knees

Cameos Used to Catch Up this Chiffon Drapery

One Style of Drapery is at the Back Only

IT IS almost twenty-five years since draperies ruled in fashion's domain. In those days—back in the late eighties—every modish skirt had an overskirt, the overskirt being caught up in some manner of drapery or other, and the skirt itself having a pleated or plain lower portion set on a "sham" which was made of some cotton lining material or—if the wearer could afford it—of silk. In the early eighties the "sham" was built out at the top over a bustle; at the end of this decade "reeds" or long flexible half-loops run through casings, distended the "sham" beneath the overskirt drapery. Those who can remember as far back as this period recall how the tapes that tied the ends of the "reeds" were forever tearing away, the flattening out of the skirt at the back causing one much mortification. Now draperies are back in high favor but instead of being built out over whalebone distended foundations, they are drawn as softly and limply around the limbs as narrow skirt measurements and silky-soft fabrics will admit. With the entrance of draperies have come new worsted and new silk and satin materials softer and slimpsier than ever these materials were woven before and everything from chiffon to velvet brocade is obtainable in double width—which means that draped effects are much simplified for the dressmakers.

Metallic Chiffons Touch the Luxury

Of course these wide velvets, silks brocaded crepes and metallic chiffons are ruinously expensive. Some of the prices, by the yard, are fairly staggering but the draped gowns are so enchantingly lovely and so becoming into the bargain that one would no return to the era of straight, limp Empire lines if one could. Damass crepé de chine is a new silken stuff that is gaining favor every day and another figured material that is soft and graceful in texture as well as splendid in coloring, is metallic chiffon—which is simply double width chiffon in new, wonderful coloring splashed over with great Oriental figures in dull silver or gold. One of the draped costumes illustrated to day shows this splendid metallic chiffon in combination with plain charmeuse. The costume is a long sleeved and high-necked model, intended for afternoon wear and is built of charmeuse in a new shade of tangerine yellow or rust color. The chiffon is in the same warm tone with a bold pattern in dull gold and this metallic chiffon is draped most gracefully over the lower part of the skirt on one side of the costume, the drapery being carried upward in long lines at the other side and falling away in a cascade effect at the hip. The metallic chiffon also crosses the bodice in a surplice drapery at back and front the long, shirred sleeve being of the plain charmeuse. Amber pins are worn in the hair with this gown, and the ear-rings are gold with topaz drops. Buttoned boots of black kid with French heels and thin soles complete the correct afternoon costume.

Brick Red and Sulphur Immensely Fashionable.

Flame and sulphur, called suggestively "colors de l'Inferno" are the hues, par excellence of the new season in Paris. A close second to these warm tones are Besnard, a new brick red much favored by Callot Soeurs, gernatum and tomato. But that there is a decided "feeling" for flame suggesting hues, is evidenced by the preference for sulphur, amber and a reddish orange called Capucine. Sometimes flame and sulphur are used together or Besnard and amber, a gown of this type being pictured on the seated figure. This gown is a Worth model and its conservatism of line is rather belied by the almost crude coloring. The amber colored satin gown is veiled with Besnard chiffon, sewn with an embroidery of small dull gilt beads. Over this beaded tunic are panels of satin in the brick red color, each panel being weighted with gilt bead fringe. The decolletage is filled in with very pale pink tulle and the coiffure ornament—a very important feature of the modern evening toilette—is of pink tulle drawn under a bandeau of amber beads, a chou of the tulle from which rises a paradise aigrette being placed at one side of the bandeau. This gorgeous costume is completed by boots of amber colored satin with faceted amber buttons.

Draperies Caught With Brooches.

Still another evening gown shows a simple and very graceful chiffon drapery over lace, the drapery being caught at girdle and knee with large, old fashioned cameo brooches. The colors in the gown repeat the soft pink and white cameo tints, the tunic being of palest pink chiffon, draped over deeper pink satin veiled with white lace. The bodice of lace over pink satin is draped with pink and white chiffon and a delicate fringe of pink and crystal beads edges the bodice and the loose sleeves. This lovely pink and white costume was designed for a debutante of this season who will wear the cameo gown at one of the early cotillons in December.

The new draped effects are a veritable boon to the woman who must economize, for notwithstanding the costliness of the new fabrics many a passe evening gown will be able to hold up its head through another season, discretely draped with a yard or two of chiffon, lace or novelty material. This hopeful possibility of economy is augemnted by the fashion for one sided bodice effects. Given a partly worn white satin evening gown, there is no reason in the world why half of it—the worst half should not be covered up with a winding drapery of lovely bordered chiffon or of stately brocaded velvet which will fall away in folds from the best half of the satin foundation. Or, if the inventory of last year's left-overs discovers only a usable skirt, the bodice being gone past redemption, a new bodice of lace may be constructed and skirt and lace bodice be married into united felicity by a long scarf-like winding drapery of fringe-edged chiffon.

Still another way to build over the last year's gown will be to fell it with a fur bordered chiffon tunic which will drop above a flounce of lace; tunic and lace flounce completely hiding the skirt of the passe gown. The bodice of lace draped over with chiffon like the tunic will complete a deliciously pretty new dancing gown the only expense for which will have been the new chiffon tunic, lace flounce and a little allover lace to make the bodice.

Longer Skirts With New Draped Gowns.

The short skirt is an impossibility with the draped costume—unless all canons of grace are to be ignored. All the new draped gowns cover the feet and most of them drag on the floor, not only at the back but all the way around, so that the skirt has to be picked up when walking. This means of course, very pretty footwear, for nothing is uglier, under the soft clinging draperies than a clumsy walking foot. With all these draped costumes for afternoon wear are worn the daintiest boots having thin turned soles and, usually, very high heels accompanied by satin slippers or by high-heeled buttoned boots of satin or kid. Afternoon boots are of satin of bronze leather, of soft kid tops and the buttons contribute to the prettiness of the boot, being of pearl, faceted crystal or of amber.

Even worsted materials are draped now and the new tailleur du ceremonie may not claim Parisian origin unless its skirt is caught up somewhere in ever so slight a draped effect.

A black broadcloth tailleur of this ceremonious character was noted the other day at an exhibition of paintings at a fashionable club. The coat was a pronounced cutaway model with very long tails at the back and a sloping front opening over an adorable vest of pale lilac satin brocade. A huge cluster of English violets, caught at the coat front near the pale lilac vest made a striking color note. The skirt of this costume was very straight and slender in line and exactly at the knee, at back and front were two parallel lines of shirring which gathered up the material for a space of six inches. The draped effect resulting was very slight but it just saved the skirt from absolute plainness and gave it most modish lines. Six buttons were set on the lines of shirring—twenty-four buttons in all.

Charmeuse and Crepe Favored For Draped Effects.

As was to be expected, crepe de chine leapt to instant favor with the coming in of draped effects. No fabric is more beautiful than this long familiar crepe de chine. Now that it may be obtained in double width, it is very easy to manage and is not beyond the reach of the average pocketbook. It is becoming to the stout as well as the slender figure and is exceedingly easy to manipulate, even by the amateur dressmaker. A charming afternoon frock of olive brown crepe de chine is illustrated. This frock shows a very simple drapery at the back of the skirt the side gores having been cut in rather wide circular form and then drawn in, fold upon fold as the photograph shows, the drapery being held at the center back by a row of triple shirring over cords. The bodice is also very simple and opens in surplice effect over a white satin yoke trimmed at back and front with green glass buttons. Cream lace frills edge the sleeves. The cluster of brown, gold and pale yellow velvet pansies, held in the hands, is intended for final location at the left front of the girdle and with this dainty gown will be worn buttoned boots of patent leather with tops of kid.

The chiffon afternoon gown is a particularly smart model by Paquin and shows a very slight drapery at the back of the knees while, the panel front gives long lines and height. This gown is made of the new Besnard—or brick red—chiffon combined with cream white satin the panel being of the satin. This panel is really a part of an entire cream satin gown which drags about the feet. It is rounded out deeply at the top to show a guimpe of cream batiste embroidery and lace on which are two folds of tangerine net, the top of the guimpe being finished with a cream lace collar. Over the white satin gown is a tunic of Besnard chiffon which stops short at either side of the front, leaving a panel of the satin. The edges of the Besnard chiffon are finished with soutache dyed to match and formed into coiled discs on the white satin. Lastly a deep flounce of the Besnard chiffon is dropped over frock and tunic. White embroidered silk gloves meet the loose sleeves, and the hat of gold colored plush has a long white ostrich plume.

Paris Favors Embroidery for Intimate Garments

TROUSSEAU plans in the autumn always renew interest in lingerie belongings, and every woman, after the absorbing business of selecting the new winter wearables for outer wear has been satisfactorily accomplished, likes to renew her stock of under wearables—or dainty beau dessous as the French-woman calls them—according to latest trousseau notions.

Practical Type of Brassire With Dainty Trimming.

All lingerie garments adhere to the slim, slender lines necessary under clinging gowns. Not the least suspicion of a gather is allowed at the waist and belts and buttons have long ago gone the way of flounced petticoats, knitted camisoles and other monstrosities of the past wherewith woman built out her form in the interests of a presumable protection from the cold. It has been proved that one may be quite as warm and much more comfortable in lighter, tighter garments than were deemed possible twenty years ago and since all houses are now heated to antipodean heat and mammoth furs are the mode out of doors, there seems little reason why women should bundle themselves up as was perhaps necessary in the days when furnaces were not.

Just now embroidery trimmings are the whim of fashion and laces are used only to set off the beautiful needlework. The machine embroidered patterns, many of them done on hand looms abroad, are wonderfully beautiful, imitating the distinguished hand wrought effects with great fidelity and some of these embroideries are distinguished in themselves, prices running up to four and five dollars the yard for some of the exclusive new patterns. Embroidery trimmed petticoats are used even with dancing frocks, though the embroidery flounce is of the finest possible character and is mounted directly on the petticoat without any under ruffle, a ribbon-threaded beading separating petticoat and flounce. Dancing petticoats have very deep flounces of exquisitely sheer embroidery, set on tops of nainsook or batiste and usually a frill of narrow lace is put under the edge of the scallops to give a very dainty look around the ankles. These deep flounces are set on without any fullness, or there is a slight tuck added in the way of pin tucks. A petticoat of this sort is pictured. Flounce and batiste top are joined with seam beading and ribbon is run below this through buttonholed slashes worked by hand in the deep flounce. A frill of val lace edges the lower edge of the flounce. Such petticoats fall to the ankle and show when the clinging dancing gown of satin is lifted; but the day petticoat worn under the tailored skirt, falls no lower than the top of the buttoned walking boot and is not supposed to show at all. It has a top of cambric or fine muslin, beautifully fitted over the hips and a rather narrow embroidery flounce finishes it at the lower edge which is never more than a yard and three-quarters wide. These short petticoats do not collect the dust and mud of the pavement as longer ones used to do and because they are more practical, and much more dainty than the silk petticoat which never visits the washtub, they are being taken up again for street wear.

Under the petticoat is the culotte drawer which is made of soft nainsook and fits as perfectly as riding breeches; that is, there are no gathers over the hip and the lower edge is drawn in to the knee either by groups of pin tucks, or by a rubber run through heading. Ruffles do not appear on the new culotte drawer and if any trimming is used it is an ungathered edge of scallop and dot embroidery or a narrow bit of lace. Some women have taken up with enthusiasm the new chemise-pantalon, which is made of tub material and which includes a pretty chemise and a short drawer, cut all in one garment and intended for wear beneath the corset. Others prefer to wear the drawer separately over the corset and underneath goes a combination of glove silk or of fine silk and wool. Not one woman in ten—except those living out in country districts where the cold is intense—now wears a woolen union suit to the ankles.

The brassiere becomes more and more popular and indeed so indispensable has this little garment now become to the dainty woman's toilet, that the long favored corset cover and skirt combination bids fair to be ousted from favor. The new brassieres are so pretty that there is no need of donning a corset cover over one of them, and the smart tulle petticoat with its embroidery flounce reaching to the boot top finishes out the requirement. A practical new brassiere is pictured. The trimming is dainty yet not too dainty for everyday wear and the brassiere closes invisibly under a fold or pleat. The garment is not boned but owes its good lines to its perfect fit and its neat finish, all seams being joined with seam-heading.

Nightgowns are returning to the yoke idea and many of the new models for fall trousseau have shaped yokes which sometimes extend out to form the sleeves. Nobody dreams of of wearing prim, long sleeves in a robe du nuit nowadays and some of the little sleeves are very embryonic affairs of lace or fine embroidery flouncing, held together on the outer side of the arm with ribbon. The lovely negligee pictured is a combination of embroidery and val lace. The lace panels cross a tunic and flounce of embroidery—a new sort of embroidery with pale pink flowers on a white ground, and around the hips, and just below the bust are set broad insertions of pink batiste with eyelets embroidered in white. This negligee is mounted over palest pink silk and the sash ends are of pink ribbon. A net cap trimmed with fine embroidery and pink ribbon matches the negligee and the buttoned walking boot of patent leather has been changed for pink boudoir slippers.

Two Sorts of Embroidery Combined With Lace Panels.

Think Human Tears of Value.

In Persia the past and present are linked by the belief that human tears are a remedy for certain diseases. At every funeral, each mourner is given a sponge with which to mop off the eyes and cheeks. After the burial the wet sponges are given to a priest, who squeezes the tears into bottles, which he keeps for curative purposes. This is one of the most ancient of eastern customs. See Fifty-sixth Psalm, verse eight, where David says: "Put thou my tears into thy bottle." This custom is still followed in Persia.—From Hombaugh's "Facts and Fancies."

Turkish Troops Driven from Carakosch

By Associated Press

Icka, Montenegro, Nov 12.—The bombardment of the Turkish city of Carakosch on Lake Skutari, continued throughout Sunday. Toward evening the Turkish garrison withdrew to the highest point in its work on the side of the mountain, but the Turks' position was rendered so desperate by exposure to snow and the lack of food that they later attempted to abandon all their positions and to escape into the city of Skutari. They were, however, driven back into Taikakosch by the Montenegrin troops.

Turkish Soldier Hungry and Disheartened.

Paris, Nov. 12.—A staff correspondent of the Temps, Jean Rodes, who has reached Constantinople from the war zone, sends a vivid picture of the misery of the Turkish soldiers and the disorganization of the Turkish army. He says:

"We have witnessed the failure of the Turk as a soldier. We have seen him dying of hunger, worn out by fatigue, wrecked by suffering and running away after having abandoned his place in the combat.

"I have never seen a more poignant picture of human distress than that presented by these unhappy men, thrown into one of the most terrible wars in history, without food, without chiefs, almost without arms. And, at Seidler, I saw a soldier whose right hand had been severed, holding out to us, begging for help the bleeding stump around which he had tied a piece of twine.

"I saw long lines of famished men who came to our tent begging for a crumb of bread and staggering away without a murmur of complaint when told that we had none to give. I saw a thousand wounded leaving a trail of blood as they dragged themselves toward Tchorlu. I saw hundreds of others fall by the wayside, dying from wounds and fatigue.

"At Tchorlu a column of soldiers, terrible in appearance, staggered through the streets in a driving rain and windstorm. No one had paid any attention to them. They had no shelter, nothing to eat. From a nearby bakery an officer threw out handsful of bread and the soldiers fought for the loaves. More than half of them got nothing and turned away ragged, pallid and weak.

"All the houses were closed. Practically all the population had fled and those who remained barricaded themselves within, trembling with fear. The soldiers knocked vainly at the barred doors. Groups shivering in the cold, tried the doors of stables to seek refuge; even the stables remained inhospitable. Refugees smashed their way into shops and devoured all they found, including raw vegetables and candles, and sucked at pieces of greasy wood.

"I never saw such an image of inferno. One of the most miserable of the wanderers succeeded in getting into a house where we were staying, drenched to the skin, and teeth chattering. "Take all my money, take my clothing if you will, but I beg of you to give me some bread," he cried.

"I questioned him. He said he came from Asia Minor and had not eaten for eight days. I gave him a slice of bread and a chocolate tablet and he went to join the remnants of the retreating army, of which this was the end.

"Thus did the Turkish soldier appear to me. He seemed to have no understanding of the real drama in which he was participating. But his infinite misery and his horrible animal distress were enough to break one's heart.

"I do not know whether the accusations of a massacre are exact, but so far as I have observed, I can affirm that not only have the Turks committed no excesses, but I believe that no army in the world under such frightful circumstances would have been more moderate and more docile."

R. E. NUTT, SR. DIED MONDAY EVENING

He Was an ex-Confederate and a Venerable and Highly Respected Citizen in His 84th Year

Yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, Mr. R. E. Nutt, Sr., died at his home in this city corner 12th and Lamar from an attack of Bright's disease.

The deceased had been one of the leading and substantial citizens for the past four or five years, coming with his family from Beeville, Texas. He was in his 84th year at his death and leaves surviving him a widow, Mrs. Mary E. Nutt, five sons, R. E., A. V., A. A., Horace and C. B. Nutt, and three daughters, Mrs. Ella May of Barclare, Texas, Mrs. Laura Thompson, Clarebell, Texas and Mrs. E. B. Stevens of this city all of whom were in this city and at his bedside at the time of his death.

The deceased was a native of North Carolina, coming to Texas in 1857. He was a Confederate soldier and served his country faithfully as such during the Civil war.

Funeral services attended by a large number of friends of the family, were conducted by Dr. Hill, pastor of the M. E. Church, South, at the conclusion of which members of the Masonic order escorted the remains of their deceased brother to the Union Station where they were placed aboard the train and taken to Beeville, Texas for interment in the family burying ground at that place, accompanied by all members of the family.

Dallas—The board of commissioners of this city has let contract for the erection of a new hospital to cost approximately $89,900 work to start immediately.

WILSON'S CABINET INCLUDES TEXAN?

SLATE PREPARED BY PRESIDENT-ELECT'S FRIENDS HAS BURLESON'S NAME

HOKE SMITH MENTIONED

Believed He Will Be Offered Portfolio of State if Bryan Declines Post

(Washington correspondent Dallas News)

Washington, D. C., Nov 12.—The following cabinet slate is understood to constitute the guess of a coterie of Gov. Wilson's friends with whom, perhaps more than with anyone else the President-elect has intimately discussed public men and measures.

Secretary of State—Williams Jennings Bryan. In the event Col. Bryan declines the honor Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia.

Secretary of Treasury—Charles R. Crane of Illinois.

Secretary of War—William F. McCombs of New York.

Attorney General—Louis Brandels of Massachusetts or A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania.

Postmaster General—Albert Sidney Burleson of Texas.

Secretary of the Navy—James D. Phelan of California.

Secretary of the Interior—Josephus Daniels of North Carolina.

Secretary of Commerce and Labor—John Lind of Minnesota.

Secretary of Agriculture—Obadiah Gardner of Maine.

No one will attempt to say that there has been a hint of any kind from the President-elect that justifies the assumption that any one of these men named is a certainty, unless it is the vague and untraceable report that Mr. Wilson has made up his mind to tender the highest place in his cabinet to Col. Bryan. Yet, while this slate is as much a guess as any that has appeared in the newspapers, it has the weight of being the opinion of those men who from their long and intimate association with the President-elect should be able to gauge fairly accurately the elements that the next President will take into account in selecting his official advisers. How much of this speculation as to what the President-elect will do is influenced by the feeling as to what it would be wise for him to do, remains to be seen from future developments, but the present opinion of those close to Gov. Wilson is that this slate will show more men correctly placed than any combination yet suggested.

Aside from the general feeling that Col. Bryan will have the refusal of the post of Secretary of State all cabinet speculation appears to agree on two other points—that Mr. McCombs can have a portfolio if he wants it, and that Pennsylvania and Texas are to be recognized through the appointment of Representatives Palmer and Burleson, respectively.

The slate here given introduces two new names—Senator Hoke Smith for Secretary of State in the event Col. Bryan does not accept the post if tendered him, and John Lind, the popular ex-governor of Minnesota, a selection, it is said, that would be a telling answer to the impression that Gov. Wilson's enemies have attempted to create that he is hostile to healthy immigration.

The geographical distribution also shows careful study. It considers New England in Senator Obadiah Gardner for Secretary of Agriculture; New York, in Mr. McCombs for Secretary of War; the South twice in Representative Burleson for Postmaster General and Josephus Daniel for Secretary of the Interior, the West and Middle West three times in Col. Bryan for Secretary of State, Chas R. Crane for Secretary of the Treasury and John Lind for Secretary of Commerce and Labor; and finally, the Pacific coast in James D. Phelan for Secretary of the Navy.

There is the best reason to believe that the names on this slate are being considered, or will be considered by Mr. Wilson. That, however does not spell certainty for no one knows better than his political friends how patiently he listens to advice and then how boldly and independently he sets out to do things in his own tactful and clearly thoughtout way. Therefore his friends are prepared to see the President-elect reach out into the professions disassociated from politics for perhaps two or three members of his cabinet, but their high regard for the very practical side of the man which this campaign has disclosed in him lends his friends to believe that his cabinet will be a judicial admixture of the practical and the academic, with the practical element largely predominant. Hence they pin faith in the slate here discussed, expecting it to score, if not 100 per cent, at least very high when the cabinet appointments are announced.

ROOSEVELT'S ASSAILANT PLEADED GUILTY TODAY

Court Will Appoint a Commission to Investigate Into Schrank's Sanity

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 12.—John Schrank today plead guilty to the shooting of Col. Theodore Roosevelt. The court then decided to appoint a commission to examine Schrank as to his sanity.

Schrank appeared little concerned over the fact that his liberty, for probably the next fifteen years was in jeopardy.

"My crime," said Schrank, "is a political crime rather than a crime against humanity, and I guess that with all the political crime that has taken place in the last few years, they won't be very hard on me. However if they do give it to be hard, why I guess I can take my medicine."

When asked "Do you plead guilty or not guilty," Shrank said.

"I did not mean to kill a citizen. I shot Theodore Roosevelt because he was a menace to the country. He should not have a third term. It is bad that a man should have a third term. I did not want him to have one. I shot him as a warning that men must not try to have more than two terms as president. I shot Theodore Roosevelt to kill him. I think all men trying to keep themselves in office should be killed. They become dangerous. I did not do it because he was a candidate of the Progressive party, either, gentlemen."

RENT HOUSES A CRYING NEED

HOUSING OF NEW CITIZENS IS BECOMING A SERIOUS QUESTION IN WICHITA FALLS

EVEN ROOMS ARE SCARCE

Almost Impossible to Find Rooms Let Alone Houses—Houses Building Not Sufficient

The need for more rent houses in this city, which has been present for some time, is becoming more and more acute, and the question of housing the new residents is getting to be a serious one. Many new comers, who had anticipated little difficulty in getting a house, have had to be content with house keeping rooms and these are now becoming scarce.

The Times classified columns which may be considered a fair barometer of the rent situation, have contained very few "for rent" ads in a number of weeks, although the "wanted to rent" column has been extensively patronized.

A number of rent houses are now being constructed, but most of these were rented in advance. Most of the new comers are substantial citizens accustomed to the comforts of life, and they have been finding themselves "up against it" for accommodations.

The demand for furnished and unfurnished rooms is also very heavy as many as twenty-five persons coming in The Times office in a day to make inquiry. Some of them return day after day to look over the paper to search for advertisements of rooms.

A hundred houses could be rented tomorrow and within a week a hundred more would find tenants.

CONTINUANCE IS REFUSED

AS EXPECTED JUDGE SWAYNE OVERRULED MOTION TO POSTPONE TRIAL OF SNEED

WITNESSES ARE FINED

Judge Assesses $500 Against Three Whose Absence Was Basis of Defense Motion

Fort Worth, Texas, Nov. 12.—J. B. Sneed's application for a continuance of his trial for murder was not filed until this morning. The petition alleges that so many important witnesses are absent that the defense cannot present its side fully.

Judge Swayne overruled the motion for a continuance and the selection of a jury began this morning. The first thirty-two veniremen were excused.

Sneed was alert from the beginning of the call of veniremen and he studied the face of each man, and offered frequent suggestions to his counsel. No jurors were accepted at the morning session.

Three of the more important witnesses whose absence caused the motion to continue were fined $500 each and attachments were issued for them with a request of the defense.

THIS LADY'S GOOD APPETITE

Mrs. Hansen, in a Letter From Mobile, Tells How She Gained It.

Mobile, Ala.—"I suffered for seven years, with womanly trouble," writes Mrs. Sigurd Hansen in a letter from this city. "I felt weak and always had a headache and was always going to the doctor. At last I was operated on, and felt better, but soon I had the same trouble.

My husband asked me to try Cardui. I felt better after the first bottle, and now, I have a good appetite and sleep well. I feel fine and the doctor tells me I am looking better than he ever saw me."

If you are sick and miserable, and suffer from any of the pains due to womanly trouble—try Cardui.

Cardui is successful because it is composed of ingredients that have been found to act curatively on the womanly constitution.

For more than fifty years, it has been used by women of all ages, with great success. Try it. Your druggist sells it.

WICHITA COUNTY EXHIBIT AT THE COTTON PALACE

The Wichita County exhibit at the Cotton Palace at Waco is attracting much attention and is giving the city and county more advertising than the same exhibit did at the Dallas Fair.

A recent issue of the Waco News contained the following comment on the exhibit:

The Wichita county exhibit at the Cotton Palace showing various products of diversified farming is convincing that Northwest Texas can produce equally as good corn, oats, wheat, milo maize, kaffir corn, grains and vegetables as can be grown anywhere in Texas. In this exhibit is shown the premium bale of long-staple cotton which produced more than a bale to the acre. The manufactured products on exhibit from Wichita Falls, include brooms, pottery, brick, flour, automobiles, mattresses, etc.

In the background of the exhibit is seen a picture of beautiful Lake Wichita, the largest artificial body of water in the entire southwest, covering an area of 3200 acres and containing abundant water to supply any city in Texas for a period of two years without one drop being added to the supply.

Wichita Falls, the county seat of Wichita county, is located 114 miles west of Fort Worth on the Fort Worth & Denver railroad and 158 miles southwest of Oklahoma City. This little city has been made famous by the progressiveness portrayed by its enterprising people, who are making of it a manufacturing center which is demonstrated by the fact that at the present time they have in operation thirty-eight manufacturing plants, including automobiles, window glass, glass bottles, pottery, flour, brick and other things.

Another attractive feature of this exhibit are two hand-painted pictures of Wichita Falls, one in 1880 and the other in 1910, the former portraying but seven meager cabins while the latter shows convincingly that thirty years' growth of this northwestern city has been remarkable. The city now has a population of about 15,000 people, all of whom are natives or adopted hosters.

Near Wichita Falls is located one of the largest, if not the largest natural gas fields in the world, with everlasting single wells supplying the cities of Wichita Falls, Dallas, Fort Worth, Corsicana and all intermediate points. Electra, Wichita county has proven to be one of the largest and best oil fields in the southwest with a daily production of about 20,000 barrels and being extended very rapidly.

From 1900 to 1910 but nine cities in the entire United States with equal or greater population grew as rapidly as Wichita Falls and their claim is that the next ten years will give them the leading place, and if they maintain their co-operation and pull together spirit none can possibly make more rapid strides than this little city in Northwest Texas.

KESSLER INVITED TO SPEAK HERE

Kansas City Expert Has Not Yet Accepted Invitation Extended by Civic League

An invitation to J. H. Kesler, the expert who made the "city plan" for Kansas City and for Dallas, to come to this city and deliver an address here, has been extended by the Civic League which at its last meeting acted upon the suggestion of the Chamber of Commerce to bring Mr. Kesler here.

There has been more or less discussion of late of the city's need for some definite plan along which to work as it grows, and it is believed that Mr. Kesler is probably better qualified to give the needed advice than anyone else. He has not yet accepted the invitation but it is believed he can be prevailed upon to do so.

SPANISH PREMIER ASSASSINATED

JOSE CANALIJAS SHOT DOWN WHILE ENTERING MINISTRY BUILDING TO ATTEND CABINET MEETING

ASSASSIN SUICIDES

Young Man Fired Four Shots, Two of Which Struck Premier in Head—Killed Himself After Arrest

By Associated Press.

Madrid, Nov. 12.—The Spanish premier Jose Canalejas, was shot dead today while entering the Ministry of the Interior, to attend a cabinet meeting. His assailant Manual Pardinas Serrato Martin, aged 28, of El Grabo, was arrested and then committed suicide.

Martin fired four shots. Two of the shots struck the statesman behind the right ear and he fell dead on the spot. Canalejas, as prime minister of Spain, was selected to form the Spanish cabinet in February, 1910. He was leader of the Monartica Democratic party which came into power the resignation of the Liberal cabinet, headed by Senor Prendergast.

Senor Canalejas, who belonged to a wealthy and prominent family, came to the front in political life only in 1900, when he took a leading part in the campaign against clericalism. He had, however, taken great interest in politics as a student and public speaker for many years before that.

At the age of 25, he became a member of the Spanish parliament, attaching himself to the advanced liberal section. He became a member of Premier Sagasta's cabinet in 1902, as Minister of Agriculture. He introduced many reforms, especially in regard to the working classes and eventually created a department of labor.

When he was asked, in February, 1910, by King Alfonso to form a ministry, the request caused a great sensation as it was the first time in the history of Spain, that an advanced radical had been placed at the head of the ministry. His cabinet has since undergone many changes, but he has always retained the leading place.

The project introduced by Senor Canalejas for the separation of church and state caused a rupture of relations between Spain and the Vatican. These have since been resumed and the question of separation is being discussed with a view to a friendly settlement.

The assassination occurred at 11:30 in front of a book stall near the entry to the Ministry of the Interior. Some bystanders seized the assassin and handed him over to the police. He then turned his pistol on himself.

The assassin came to Spain a short time ago from Beunos Ayres, Argentina.

King Alfonso, who hurried out of the ministry as soon as he heard of the affair, was deeply moved. Immediately after the shooting, his Majesty was acclaimed by the people, who had quickly gathered at the scene of the shooting.

Dynamite Was Loose in 100 Pound Lots and but for This Explosion Would Have Been Worse

By Associated Press.

Gary, Indiana, Nov 12.—Six workmen were killed by an explosion of two thousand pounds of dynamite in one of the packing houses of the Aetna Powder company's plant near here this morning. The men who lost their lives had arrived at the plant for the day's work, and were preparing one of the packing machines when the explosion occurred. The dynamite was loose in 100-pound lots on the packing trays and had it not been for this the damage would have been much more severe. The men were blown into bits.

MORE KAFFIR CORN AND MILO MAIZE

THESE CROPS WILL LARGELY SUPPLANT INDIAN CORN IN WICHITA CO. NEXT SEASON

J. W. CAMPBELL'S REPORT

Shows a Total of 1883 Acres Under Cultivation Last Season by Government Demonstrators

A total of 1883 acres in this section under cultivation by farmers in demonstration methods according to the report of J. W. Campbell, state director of Wichita County Farm Demonstration department, to the Commissioners' Court. During the past year the planting of Kaffir corn and milo maize has [illegible] excess of the [illegible] probably result in reduced [illegible] next year.

The cotton and cotton seed demonstration plots have far exceeded in production that on the other tracts, according to Mr. Campbell. The report shows:

[illegible] Commissioners' Court of Wichita County: [illegible] demonstration [illegible] 88 demonstrators and 87 cooperators, also 2 farmers demonstrating on kaffir and milo, some of which are included with other clubs. I have under demonstration 74 acres of corn which has by far exceeded the average of the county, also 886 acres of cotton which is above the average of the county, 147 acres of kaffir corn and 76 acres of milo which has almost doubled the yield of corn planted by the side of it, especially on the upland and which has yielded more than corn in many instances on deep sandy land and on bottom land where the kaffir and milo were planted thick and had the same cultivation.

The department recommends planting kaffir and milo on the tight lands in place of corn but the land must be prepared early and deep plowing, the plants plenty of space in drill and a thorough cultivation, secure the best selected seed and plenty of grain can be raised in any normal year.

I find that most of my demonstrators will reduce the acreage of corn and plant kaffir and milo next year.

We have a total of 188 acres under demonstration and from what reports I have gathered we are certain of a very satisfactory yield. The cotton reports will be very good.

I find the corn and cotton club boys have done excellent work, where they continued the work quite a number of the tomato club girls have also done well.

[illegible]

Yours respectfully,

J. W. CAMPBELL, Special Agt.

ELECTION COST COUNTY NEARLY $300

[illegible] approximately twenty cents for each vote cast in Wichita county last Tuesday, according to the latest figures. There were about 1,500 votes cast at a total expense of nearly $300.

At each of the smaller boxes there were three election judges each drawing $2 per day and two clerks drawing $1 per day. In the larger boxes there were five judges and four clerks, all drawing $2 for the day's work. In addition about $100 worth of stationery was required and the messenger who brought the returns in to the court house also received $2 for his evening's work, or a total of close to $300.

At Allendale and Dennis, where twelve votes each were cast, they cost the county about a dollar apiece, as there were five judges and clerks drawing $2 each, a messenger at $2 for counting the vote of the station, etc. In the city and in the larger boxes of course the cost per vote was less.

[illegible] the Mississippi [illegible] romantic or historical than Fort Snelling, the pioneer fort of early days built at the confluence of the Mississippi and Minnesota rivers to protect the early settlers and trappers. If the walls of the fort could speak what stories they could tell of early days. The fort was founded in 1819 by officers from Fort Wayne and at that time it was surrounded by a high wall and a protection from the Indians. In 1827 a party of Chippewas were murdered in their lodges by the Dakotas, who had come to pose as friends of peace to their camp. A party from the fort captured the murderers and delivered them to the Chippewas to be put to death. They were burned because of their crime, and as the Dakotas fled for their lives another fell before the fire of their enemies' rifles, their bodies were thrown over the cliff into the river below.

This is only one of numerous tragic happenings at this old fort which is associated with many distinguished [illegible]. Zachary Taylor was in command for some time and [illegible] daughter married with Lieutenant Jefferson Davis.

The Guffey has a wel lat 1036 feet on the W E. Crow tract near Electra due south of the Marriott, indicating that the 100 foot sand extends well to the southward. The size of the well is not yet known.

It was reported today that the well on the Reilly tract southwest of Burkburnett started by O'Hara and Greenless and taken over recently by Greenelces Brothers, had an eight-barrel showing at 493 feet and a number of the oil men went out this afternoon to investigate. It is understood the well will not stop in this sand.

OIL LAND TO LEASE—Land is in proven territory. Phone 231 or 185. 153 10tp

Two new locations are to be made in the vicinity of the Riley well which had a showing this week at 590 feet. One location will be made by Greenless brothers, who now own all but a small interest in the Riley well; this will be a few yards from the present well. The other will be by G. A. well. The other will be by O'Hara who started the Riley well, who still has an interest in it. His location will be on the Warren tract to the eastward, between the Riley and the Hivick-Hutson well on the Warren. The Riley well's showing is said to have been better than ten barrels, the oil standing 300 feet in the 12 inch casing.

The Embry well at Burkburnett has not yet been put on the pump, but preparations are being made for pumping about as rapidly as things usually move in that part of the field. Efforts to make the well flow failed. The Keowan, which is in the sands, is said to look better than either the Embry or the Schumocker.

The Guffeys well on the W E Crow south of the Marriott is expected to increase activities in that section, although new locations have been definitely made as yet. Some of the tracts in that immediate vicinity are in litigation which may cause some delay in developments.

The Skeley-Crawford well on the oberts farm near Burkburnett is down 500 feet. This well was not listed in the field report for October.

Another dry hole—the second—is reported from the Eeds country. It was the Corsicana's on the C. P. McClure farm, 1500 feet due north of the Eeds, which is now sixty feet past the sand. This would indicate that not much pay be expected to the northward, as the Northwestern No. 2, M. A. Reed and the Warner well were also holes at the depth of the C's. A wildcat well being drilled by Clint Wood on the Guffey southwest of the Eeds, is now down 1400 feet and should be heard from this week.

The Guffey's well on the W. E. Crow was tested yesterday and found to be slightly better than a hundred barrels.

The well on the Cate ranch near Petrolia, drilled by Little et al, is dry at 1960 feet.

The Embry well at Burkburnett was put on the pump late Friday, but no record was kept of the output, as most of the oil was taken at once for fuel. Practically all the wells in that section drew on it for fuel and its production is not yet definitely ascertained. It is said to be from 100 to 120 barrels.

The Keowan at Burkburnett was drilled into the sand late Friday, and the tubing is now being set for pumping. Indications are that it is better than either the Embry or the Schmocker, the latter is now making 102 barrels.

Several new locations are to be made by the Corsicana in the Burkburnett vicinity in the near future and the section immediately around the Schmocker is to be quite extensively developed.

The McBride well on the Chenault tract, three miles south and east of the Schmocker is due to reach the Schmocker sand this week and will serve as a test for much of the country to the south. It is being closely watched.

Oil and Gas Leases.

Roland R. Bras and D. G. Whitney to Guffey Company, transfer of lease originally executed by L. B. Ruyle and wife on 102 1-2 acres of S P R R Co., survey No. 2; $2050.

J. E. Head to Guffey Company, transfer of lease originally executed by William Borcheldt and wife covering 50 acres out of G C & S F survey No. 1; $2500.

R S. Allen to Guffey Petroleum Company, 22 acres out of east half of block 329, Waggoner Colonoy subdivision; $1000 and other considerations drilling to start in 12 months.

The Developers Company is arranging to start work immediately on another well on its tract near Petrolia. It will be drilled near Developers No. 1 which is one of the best wells in that field.

The Guffey has completed two wells on the Bywaters tract. Its No 2 is rather a small well, probably forty barrels and its No 1 has not yet been tested.

The Guffey's well on the W. E. Crow is better than at first reported and will probably make 200 barrel. It is larger food a number of new locations will be made in that section at once.

The advance in oil prices which was announced in the eastern and mid-continent fields recently, has not yet taken effect here.

Texas Oil Suits May Be Delayed.

Austin, Texas, Nov. 12—Attorney General James D. Walthall has been hampered somewhat by the settlement of the suit between the Standard Oil and H. Clay Pierce interests in New York. He was following the case carefully to get testimony with regard to the alleged oil trust in Texas, and as the settlement of the suit stopped the taking of testimony, Mr Walthall is no longer getting testimony which is being adduced there.

Before the settlement Mr. Walthall was receiving daily a transcript of the testimony being taken in New York, having made arrangements to get all testimony bearing on the Texas oil companies.

In the New York hearing there was testimony to the effect that bonds of the Magnolia Petroleum Company were handled by Standard Oil officials. The Magnolia Petroleum Company bought out the interests of the Navarro Refining Company and Security Oil Company, which were dissolved and ousted in this State for alleged violations of the anti-trust laws. The Magnolia people bought in the property after the court's judgment was entered. Recently officials of the concern were indicted by a Federal grand jury at Dallas for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust act. That immediately caused a State investigation to be instituted.

It is not known whether Mr. Walthall will investigate the matter further or whether he will leave that to B. F. Looney, who will succeed him as attorney general within the next sixty days. It is probable that the matter will be left to Mr. Looney. Mr. Walthall is not discussing the anti-trust matters, and it is rather hard to ascertain his position.

In the New York proceedings H. Clay Pierce was seeking to hold control of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company while the Standard Oil Company claimed a majority of the stock and control. The case was settled, the Associated Press dispatches saying that Mr. Pierce gave $3,000,000 to get the stock in the Waters Pierce held by the Standard.

A sixty-five foot derrick was raised for the drilling, C. F. Evans, president of the local company, stated Monday that work would be well under way by the middle of the week.

The company financing the well-drilling project was formed some time in August, after a period of about ten months of prospecting for oil. It is said that the signs are unusually promising, and the stock holders are anxiously awaiting the first positive results of the drilling.—Denton Record-Chronicle.

The Continental Oil Co has declared a dividend of $20 a share, payable November 20 to stock of record November 4. This is the second dividend declared by the company since its segregation from the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey. The first one was $50 a share, which was paid February 28. The Continental Oil Co is an Iowa concern with a capital stock of $300,000.

GRAPHIC STORY OF THE ATTACK

FRENCH CORRESPONDENT GIVES DESCRIPTION OF STORM OF ADRIANOPLE BY BULGARIANS

AEROPLANES WERE USED

Aircraft Carrying Bulgarian Scouts Flew Back and Forth Above Storm of Bullets and Shells

By Associated Press

Paris, Nov. 11—A graphic description of the storming of Bulgarians of the two Turkish forts, Carlalcete and Tapaadjie, in the outer line of fortifications around Adrianople, was received from a correspondent of the Matin. He declares that their captures seals the doom of the Turkish stronghold.

The operations began at daybreak on Thursday. The fire of the Bulgarians' big guns began to tell about ten o'clock in the morning, when the cannon in the fort began to reply. The fort had been struck by a heavy storm of shells for several hours. The Turkish infantry meanwhile had resisted the Bulgarian advance stubbornly but the line gradually began to waver.

Suddenly the command "fix bayonets" rang out among the Bulgarians, who wildly cheering ran forward and the Turks broke and ran for the city.

About noon the Bulgarian banners fluttered over the fort of Carrachete but the other fort still held out. Night fall found the Turks and Bulgarians still fighting. Suddenly in the darkness a long dazzling ray of light shot across the sky, from one of the hills held by the Bulgarians, bringing the fort Topazdjie clearly into view. Then from the other fort itself another ray shot out.

The cannon and rifle fire which had been slackening became more brisk while above the combatants the search lights flashed about among little balls of white smoke caused by the burst of shrapnel, the smoke floating like flies in a sunbeam, making even deeper the surrounding blackness, which was punctured here and there by flashes from the muzzles of cannon.

The roar of the siege and field guns dominated the rattling of rifle shots and the screeching shells as they sped through the air. As had occurred at Carlalcete early in the day the fire from the other forts began to lacken. There also the Bulgarian guns had wrought [illegible] damage.

Abruptly [illegible] were extinguished at 11 o'clock at night and the Bulgarian infantry began to storm the fort at the point of the bayonet.

Shortly before midnight they had become masters of the position and the Turks were in rout. They left their dead and dying by hundreds on the field. Throughout the operations Bulgarian aeroplanes flew back and forth over the Turkish fort, bringing valuable information to the commanding generals.

Some interesting sidelights on the war are telegraphed by another Matin correspondent who talked with some of the Turkish prisoners in the hands of the Bulgarians. Many of them had come from Asia and had never before heard of Bulgaria. When the cause of the war was explained to them one of them said "We knew nothing of that. In Asia Minor where we were recruited we were told that according to the law of Prophets, we must go to fight the infidels and that the hour to exterminate them had arrived. We were also told that Allah had promised us victory and the Turkish officers said we should divide among us the riches of Allah's enemies. We have been deceived."

Cholera Has Broken Out Among Turkish Soldiers

Constantinople, Nov. 11.—The outbreak of cholera is assuming serious proportions. Twenty-three cases had occurred among the troops along the Tchataija lines up to Wednesday. There are many more suspected cases among the wounded. A train load of wounded has just reached here, eight of the sufferers having died on the way, presumably of cholera.

The disease is getting a firmer hold on account of the massing of troops, the lack of proper food and the complete absence of sanitary arrangements. The danger to Constantinople is great on account of the influx of refugees. Already several suspected cases among the latter have been reported. The authorities are preparing a special quarantine hospital with [illegible] beds.

The frequent visits of the Austrian Ambassador, Marquis de Pallavicini to the Porte are attracting attention. Yesterday he visited the Foreign Minister. According to the Turkish newspaper, Ikdam, he declared that, in view of the phase which the Balkan situation has entered the interests of Austria and Turkey have become identical.

The authorities permit only three newspapers to be published. One of these says that differences have arisen among the Powers and argues that if Turkey profits by this precious time and inflicts some defeats on her enemies, the proposals of the triple entente will lose their importance.

THE STATE OF TEXAS.

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Wichita County, Greeting.

You are hereby commanded that you summon, by making publication in one newspaper published in the county of Wichita for four weeks previous to the return day hereof, S. L. Casey, whose residence is unknown, to be and appear before the Honorable District Court at the next regular term thereof, to be holden in the county of Wichita at the court house thereof, in Wichita Falls, Texas on the first Monday in December, 1912, the same being the 2nd. day of December, 1912 then and there to answer a petition filed in said court, on the 29th day of October, 1912, in a suit numbered on the docket of said court No. 8417, wherein Ira Franklin Casey is plaintiff and S. L. Casey is defendant. The nature of the plaintiffs demand being as follows, to-wit: That plaintiff and defendant were lawfully married on June 22nd, 1907, in Williston, N. D., and lived together as husband and wife until August 8th, 1911, when plaintiff refused to live longer with defendant as his wife and left him on that date in Cordover, Alaska, since which time plaintiff and defendant have not lived together as husband and wife. That defendant was unfaithful to his marriage vows, and lived in open and notorious adultery with Grace Flemming in Cordover, Alaska; that defendant admitted to plaintiff that these relations existed; whereupon plaintiff immediately abandoned defendant and refused to longer live with him as his wife. That above conduct on the part of defendant was without fault on the part of plaintiff; that plaintiff was true to her marriage vows and performed to the best of her ability all the duties imposed upon her under said marriage. That said marriage relations still exists. That plaintiff's maiden name was Ira F. Poe and she desires to be restored to that name. Because of the facts above alleged, plaintiff is entitled to an absolute divorce from defendant; wherefore, premises considered, plaintiff prays for citation to defendant for absolute divorce, cost of suit and for general relief.

Herein fail not, and have you before said court on the said first day of the next term thereof, this writ with your endorsement thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of said court at office in Wichita Falls, Texas, this, the first day of November A. D., 1912.

A. F. KERR, Clerk District Court Wichita County, Texas.

BUGSCUFFLE BUDGET

Editor Daily Times

Bugscuffle is in a perfect boil. The cause of the commotion is the discovery of oil on the nearby farm of old man Seets. The old man was digging a well to his horse lot when he made the find. He got on his mare and came to town just as fast as that nag could carry him and rushing into the store of Squire Yukes, he told his tale, and asked the Squire what to do about it. Now we have but one telephone line for the whole town and on it are fifteen subscribers. The result is that when any number rings, all the people on the line can get into what is being said. So when Mr. Seets had finished telling the Squire about his oil well, Mr. Yukes called up Col. Jim Jawsmith and asked him to get Dr. Pellett, Mr. Ponder and old Bro. Bugle and come to his store at once. He made the mistake of hinting to Col. Jim what was up; and by the time the four gentlemen named by the Squire had gotten to the Squire's place the whole town was crowded with an excited throng of anxious enquirers about the oil well. It took nearly forty minutes for the Squire to get the crowd quiet enough to listen to anything. When he had succeeded in this, Col. Jim Jawsmith took the floor and addressed the assembly. The following taken from the Weekly Bug's report of that speech will give the reader some idea of how Col. Jim was worked up and how his oration worked the rest of us up:

"This day, fellow citizens, the town of Bugscuffle has come into its own, say the town; for the wonderful find near the habitation of old man Seets is not simply his find, but the glory of it and the real material wealth of it belongs to every member of this community. For why and how? Why, fellow citizens, every man here and every woman here and every child here will take some degree of stock in what hereafter is to be known as the 'Universal and Unlimited Oil Company of Bugscuffle.' Old man Seets, as is becoming, will be the chief stockholder; but such is the altitudinous and unparalelled munificence of that man's mind, that he allows all his neighbors to share in the glorious and hilarious prospects that float before his own delighted and intoxicated vision; and when we have arrived at the apex and toploftical summitude of our fondest expectations—when, in other words, we have perfected the thorough organization of this wonderful company, even the infants at the breasts will be sharers in the magnificent property that is destined to enrich and rejoice this whole, complete and entire community. As I stand upon this sugar barrel today, I have sweet and dulcit visions of the oncoming wide-sweeping future. I behold the proprietor of this magnificent temple of commerce—the honorable Squire Yuke's store—I see in fancy that worthy, uncorruptable and uncrowned king among men, the president of one of the most prosperous and imperishable properties in all that magnificent domain lying west of the Great Father of waters. I behold Dr. Pellet as treasurer of that resplendent corporation; I note that ready writer, the scholarly Von Bungs, as scribe or secretary. As first vice president I behold the simple and democratic form of old man Seets, while looming large and respendent in the focus of my inner eye, I descry, as chaplin and spiritual advisor, the reverand and respected form of that Prince of Pulpitters, the great, the eloquent, the crowd sweeping and soul enrapturing Bugle! The vision grows, and as its mighty mysteries unfold, I catch the view of domes and spires and blazing minarets that snatch up the gleams of the rising sun, fling them athwart the azure empyrean and then dash them against the waves of the western sea until the white capped billows and heaven invading spray shall furnish a shower bath to inky, ebon and ancient Night. Bugscuffle!

"Its very name shall in time become another name for wealth, and culture and fame and fortune. Her sons shall ride in the gilded automobiles of prosperity; her daughters shall flash with the diamonds of 'Ormuz and Ind.' Her patriarchs shall smoke the meresham pipes of plenty and her matrons shall wear the habiliments of—of—of—of whoopledoodle."

At the close of this address the crowd, which was wild before, was now a mass of raving maniacs. They hugged each other, they wept, they shouted, they rushed forward and gathering about the Colonel, lifted him high in the air and bore him to the lemonade stand of Dutch Bunker, and almost strangled him with the votive offerings of that refreshing beverage. When order was finally restored, Squire Yukes informed the people, in a few dignified and well chosen words, that any one desiring to subscribe for stock in the oil company now in contemplation, might come forward and give Prof. Von Bungs his name. There was a general rush; and when the books had been finally closed, it was found that $27.50 had been subscribed. It was a great start; and when the crowd had dispersed, the directors, (who in the meantime had been chosen) elected the officers according to the plan and with names mentioned and outlined by Col. Jim in his speech.

But this oil excitement was not the only thing that has set the blood of Bugscuffle to tingling. Some boys, out hunting for coons and such, said they had seen what they believed to be gas—natural gas—issuing out of the ground about a mile from town near the farm of Mr. Bumbel. We have not yet looked into that matter, but there is considerable interst manifested in the possibilities of that find. We were all so tired on the day we organized the oil company, that we must need take osme rest before we entered on another strenuous day. Just what comes of all this I will write you later. In the meantime, Bugscuffle is on a boom. Let Wichita Falls and all other western towns look to their laurels. We are on the march.—Twenty more people came to live with us last week. Four families from Dallas bought lots and are going to build here.

The following personals and locals, taken from the Weekly Bug's last issue, will conclude this letter:

An old duck from Wichita Falls, by the name of Hunks, has bought two lots from old man Bunker and will put in a second hand furniture store in a few weeks.

Sis Ponder and a young lady from Iowa Park, Miss Bet Grudle, spent the night with Nan Seets two days since.

Capt. Henson and Judge Scurry of Wichita Falls, were out visiting the Misses Wunk last week. Some think those two old bachelors are likely to get hitched up with some of our Bugscufflebelles. A young merchant of your city, by the name of Sweeton, and one also by the name of Wood, have been paying a good deal of attention lately to the Bumble girls—Misses Pud and Dinkie. Some think there is likely to be "something doing."

Sime Stiggins a poor booze fighter, who belongs to a good family and who has a wife and three nice little children, was found drunk in old Squire Yuke's hog pen last Saturday night. He had just returned from Wichita Falls. Poor Mrs. Stiggins.

Quite a crowd went over to the Falls to hear Morris Sheppard last Sunday. That speech of his in the Methodist church on Sunday night was what Col. Jim Jawsmith calls a "humdinger." That was the biggest congregation we ever saw in this country and we have seen some big ones.

Will write more anon; whatever that means.

Yours truly,
JOSH BAGGS.

COTTON $3.00 BALE HIGHER SINCE ELECTION

Cotton has advanced three dollars a bale since the election of Woodrow Wilson and the staple was selling at 12 cents a pound and higher this morning, the high mark of the season.

Pessimistic Republicans and Progressives were saying before the election "Just watch cotton go down if the Democrats win." Some of them believed it too. Instead of the predicted decline the price has advanced each day since the election and of course the Democrats ought to be given the credit. However that may be, Democratic and Republican farmers alike are feeling mighty good when they market their cotton these days.

Feeder steers, cows, heifers and hogs all have advanced in price since the election. Corn and wheat show practically no change. Provisions are quoted higher.

Every Claim is Backed By Local Testimony

Mrs. Mary Beck, 712 Seventh St., Wichita Falls, Texas, says: "Although I really do not like the idea of my name being used publicly, I feel that it is my duty to let every one who is suffering from kidney trouble know what a blessing Doan's Kidney Pills were to me. For years I suffered from kidney trouble, having pains in my back and side and irregular action of the kidneys. I steadily grew worse and about three years ago the trouble reached a climax, when I had to take to the bed. For three months I was helpless and six local physicians said that I had Bright's disease. I was discouraged. About that time a friend suggested that I try Doan's Kidney Pills. I confess that I had no faith in them but as a last resort, I took them. From the first I began to improve and by the time I had taken the first box, I was much better. Four boxes entirely cured me. That was three years ago and since then on several occasions, I have used Doan's Kidney Pills. It gives me the greatest pleasure to publicly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

CHOLERA WORSE THAN BULLETS

500 NEW CASES DAILY AMONG TURKISH SOLDIERS ON FORTIFICATIONS

IS UNDERMINING DEFENSES

Epidemic at the Same Time, It Is Believed Will Prevent Occupation of City

Armistice Reported Agreed Upon.

By Associated Press.

London, Nov. 15.—Bulgaria and Turkey have agreed upon an armistice according to a special news agency dispatch which reached this city this afternoon from Bucharest, Roumanian.

By Associated Press.

Constantinople, Nov. 15—The cholera epidemic among the Turkish troops holding the line of fortifications at Tchatalja in front of Constantinople, is rapidly becoming worse. Over five hundred cases are reported daily and the total already exceeds six thousand.

Whatever hope the Turks may have had of maintaining their line of defenses has been dissipated by this out break of cholera. An eye witness declared that he saw 263 bodies buried in one big trench near the headquarters of the Turkish commander-in-chief on Tuesday.

The bodies were dragged to the spot on hooks and dropped into the trench, which was not nearly deep enough for the purpose. The covering of earth was very shallow.

While cholera is undermining the Turkish defenses, it also constitutes a formidable opposition to the Bulgarian advance, and it is generally believed here that the outbreak has disposed of the question of even a temporary occupation of Constantinople by the Bulgarian troops. It is thought that King Ferdinand of Bulgaria will risk the lives of his soldiers in this way if he can avoid it.

It is stated on good authority that cholera already has appeared among the Bulgarian troops. This would not be at all surprising because they occupy the positions where the disease claimed its first Turkish victims. The Bulgarian army last Sunday occupied the town of Derkos at the Black Sea end of the Tchatalja line and thus controls the water supply of Constantinople. This, however, has not yet been interfered with.

The apathy and sullen resignation with which the Turks face the series of overwhelming disasters deserves comment. It is true, the severe application of martial law prevents public expression of any criticism or demonstration of resentment.

The great mass of Turks, however, are inclined to bow to the inevitable and to accept without violent opposition what they regard as the dictates of fate.

Bulgarians at Bosphorus Entrance.

By Associated Press

Constantinople, Nov. 15—Bulgarian troops have reached the vicinity of Killos on the Black Sea at the entrance to the Bosphorus and within a few miles of Constantinople.

The men belonging to the Turkish life boat station have left their posts.

Bulgarian Council Discusses Armistice Proposal.

By Associated Press

Sofia, Nov. 15.—The Turkish request for an armistice was discussed today by the Bulgarian council of ministers. It was decided to reply that the Bulgarian government will inform the other nations in the Bulgarian alliance of the steps taken by Turkey and will give its reply as soon as possible after reaching an agreement with them.

Bulgarians Have Reached Killos

By Associated Press

London, Nov. 15—Announcement that the Bulgarians have reached Killos lifts a corner of the veil which has been baffling observers of the movement of the victorious invaders in front of the Ottoman capital.

Their appearance at Killos shows they are now very close to Therapia, the summer resort of Constantinople.

Early peace in the Balkans seems assured, but whether it will come without the surrender of Constantinople probably is known only to King Ferdinand and his advisers. If the Bulgarians at Killos are in strong force there is little doubt that if they wish they can enter Constantinople and take possession.

Differences between Servia and Austria Hungary over an Adriatic port seem in a fair way toward settlement but Montenegro's attitude in declining to relinquish any of the spoils of war is causing some concern.

WILL PUT UP MARKERS FOR "MERIDIAN" ROAD

Signs Ordered for Route in This County by Y. M. P. L.—Planned to Mark All Way

Within the next few days signs will be placed along the road from the Burkburnett bridge to the southeastern part of the county, pointing the route of the Meridian road" which has been definitely located through this county. The Young Men's Progressive League expects the signs to be here shortly. F. N. Foxhall of Jacksboro has written to the league, saying signs are wanted for the road through that county and it is hoped to have the route clearly marked all the way from Burkburnett bridge to Fort Worth within the next few weeks. From Fort Worth south to Waco, which is as far as the route has been located in Texas, signs are to be placed as soon as possible.

Similar signs will eventually mark the road for its entire distance from Winnipeg to the Gulf and when the highway has been improved for the cross-continent road, its path will be clearly indicated at frequent intervals. It is hoped to have Wichita county's part of the road made into a finished pike at an early date.

BAPTISTS WILL BEGIN REVIVAL SUNDAY

Rev. J. H. Pace of Anson Will Assist Pastor in Series of Special Meetings

The First Baptist Church will begin a series of services commencing Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. J. H. Pace of Anson will assist the pastor in the meeting. There will be a special service for men Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Services each day through the week at 9 45 in the morning and 7.30 in the evening. Prayer meeting for men thirty minutes before the evening service.

It is the purpose of those who are planning the meeting not to continue these services more than ten days, as this is a busy time with all. The hope is, therefore, expressed that all the members of the church will give due consideration to their spiritual needs during this time and arrange to attend all the services as far as it is possible to do so. The unsaved are also urged to give themselves an opportunity to know the way of salvation during these days of special effort in their behalf.

The Christian people of the community are cordially invited to these services.

ROOSEVELT'S PLURALITY 65 IN CALIFORNIA.

San Francisco, Cal. Nov 15.—California complete gave Roosevelt a plurality over Wilson of sixty-six, in considerably more than 500,000 votes.

These figures are official from all but three counties, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Yuba. In Los Angeles, a Roosevelt stronghold, the Democrats have filed a petition with the District Court of Appeals for a writ of mandmaus compelling the board of supervisors to "make an honest count." Arguments on the application will be heard Monday.

Gross irregularities are charged by the petitioners, one of whom is Miss Mary Foy, a wealthy resident of Pasadena. That tally sheets in thirty-eight precincts were removed from the eelction returns by breaking of the official seals also is alleged.

The tally sheets it is asserted, were made unintelligible by the judges of election and changed in such a manner that more than 600 votes were affected. These votes, if counted as originally intended, or if unintelligible as alleged and not counted at all, would have materially reduced the plurality of Roosevelt in Los Angeles county, according to the petition.

Bald Hills, the last northern precinct to straggle in today, brought a smile by failing to change the result. Stanchly Republican, the precinct cast four votes for Taft, one for Chafin and none for the two leading candidates.

MAY COMPLETE JURY BY NIGHT

SEVEN JURORS FOR TRIAL OF SNEED HAD BEEN ACCEPTED AT NOON

ADVICE TO VENIREMEN

Judge Tells Them to Knock Down and Spit in Face of Those Who Talk About Case

By Associated Press

Fort Worth, Texas, Nov 15—Completion of the jury which will try J. B. Sneed for the murder of Capt. A. G. Boyce Sr., is expected by tonight.

Examination of veniremen proceeded vigorously this morning, the sixth juror being added before 10 a. m. Judge Swayne has instructed the veniremen to "knock down and spit in the face of any man who tries to discuss the case with you." He has promised to order the release of any venireman who uses such strenuous methods.

Seven jurors had been selected when court took its noon recess. Two were chosen out of twenty-five examined this morning. A. G. Huffmaster, a farmer had been on the witness stand forty five minutes when court adjourned. The defense challenged him because he said one man should not kill another and admitted he had an opinion that could be changed only by evidence.

The State strongly resisted the challenge and Judge Swayne refused to excuse him until he was satisfied that he had a fixed opinion. Huffmaster was the most refractory talesman examined this week. He exasperated Judge Swayne by his evasive answers, and at one time the court threatened to fine him if he qualified his answer to a question that should be answered by yes or no.

The two jurors selected Friday morning were Weaver Birch, a farmer living near Dulless, native of Missouri, married nine years, has three children, one of them a baby girl, has one married sister and never was a juror in a murder trial before; S. B. Austin, aged 44, farmer living near Grapevine, native of Alabama, married, has four children including two daughters, both married. He served in the murder trial of a negro eighteen years ago.

The new rector was formerly a newspaper man, but entered the Episcopal ministry some years ago. He has the reputation of being an accomplished and eloquent divine.

IMMORAL DRAMAS CATHOLIC TARGET

Movement to Censor Bad and Support Good Plays Has Approval of Pope

New York, Nov. 15—The National Catholic Theatre movement is rapidly taking definite shape. With the personal indorsement of Cardinal Farley and in accordance with the papal bull of Pius X., to the daughters of the faith, Miss Ellya O'B. Lummis, the founder of the movement, has sent out to the hierarchy of the United States and Canada an outline of the plan of organization.

Active co-operation upon the part of cardinals, archbishops and bishops with the laity of their respective dioceses is asked in this concerted effort to bring all classes, irrespective of creed, into a National union for the eradication of immoral drama from the American stage.

Cardinal Gibbons, Baltimore, Cardinal O'Connell, Boston; Archbishop Riordan, San Francisco, the bishops of Newark, Sioux City, Iowa; Richmond and Bismarck, N. D., have assured the cardinal of New York of their readiness to further the project.

Cardinal Farley upon his return next week from the Pacific coast is expected to announce the personnel of the National and local committees.

"National Catholic influence," declares the official plan of organization, "must be concentrated upon practical demonstration in New York, while foundation is being laid at the same time in every city for local support of reputable plays. Success in New York will be repeated in every other city; plays denounced in New York will find no audience elsewhere."

The plan of organization as officially outlined, provides that a National committee shall invite the formation in each city of a Catholic civic committee under the supervision of its bishop. The civic committee in each city shall form subcommittees in each parish.

The subcommittee, each supervised by its pastor, shall cover a special field, calling social meetings for discussion among their own people and gaining the co-operation of all classes in their district. Each parish shall thus have individual representation through its civic committee in the National committee in New York and shall be credited with the sum of all financial offerings from its people.

The opening of a charter under Catholic supervision, the clergy is likewise informed, does not indicate the immediate erection of a theatre building.

Managers will find it to their financial profit to present approved plays if indorsement and support are warranted.

Nor is the undertaking wholly dependent on financial support. It is advisable, however, that each city should offer its assistance to the National committee.

Cardinal Gibbons assures the cardinal of New York that in trying to uplift the moral tone of our plays he has his hearty support.

Among the women vitally interested are Mrs. Mary Anderson Navarro and Miss Elizabeth Marbury. Mary Anderson wrote:

"If a Catholic theatre could be made practical it would be a beautiful thing and do great good. But where procure plays? Would it reproudce mysteries? It would take a lot of money. Where is the money to be found?"

GOOD RESULTS BY OIL SUPPLY MEN

Travelers Over Road to Electra Found It Greatly Improved Today

The "road gang" of oil supply men, who yesterday worked the road from this city to Electra, accomplished good results according to some who used the road today. One man who came in a machine this morning said that it was necessary for him to change from high gear only twice on the entire road, while it before had been necessary twelve or fifteen times.

The oil men found some very bad holes on the road, especially where the approaches to bridges and culverts had been washed out. Large stones, logs and other things were placed in these and covered with earth, putting the road in much better shape.

The party spent practically all day yesterday on the road and they believe that the road is very much improved as a result of their labors.

CLARK FAVORS EXTRA SESSION

THE SPEAKER SAYS DEMOCRATS HAVE MADE PROMISES AND OUGHT TO KEEP THEM

CROAKERS ARE UNHEARD

Business Men Confident of Continued Prosperity, He Says—Wants More Elastic Currency

By Associated Press

Washington, Nov. 15—Speaker Champ Clark returning to Washington today, said:

"I believe there should be an extra session of Congress at the earliest possible date after March to fulfill the pledges made by the democratic party. We made certain definite promises in order to win. We ought to carry them out religiously.

"I have no doubt we will keep faith with the people. Therefore, I am in favor of an extraordinary session of Congress at an early a date as possible after the inauguration to revise the tariff and to do such other things as appear proper. The country has a right to know what we intend to do. It is the uncertainties that hurt, but after all is said and done whether we have an extra session or not depends entirely upon Mr. Wilson's idea as to the necessity thereof."

Mr. Clark said business men were confident of continued prosperity and that nobody pays any attention to the croakers except to laugh at them."

The speaker said the currency laws should be so revised as to afford greater elasticity in the money volume. He expressed the belief there would also be amendments to the Sherman law making it more effective.

CITY DOING MORE CLEAN-UP WORK

Trash Wagon Making Regular Trips and Sanitary Force Regularly Employed

More "clean up" work is now being done by the city than for some time and the city is being gotten into good sanitary condition for the winter months. The trash wagons are making regular trips through the residence section and a large sanitary force is now regularly employed.

Sanitary Officer Brown is making careful inspection of the downtown places, paying particular attention to the restaurants. He is also reporting those citizens who refuse or fail to obey clean up orders. There has been some agitation here for having the paved streets flushed two or three nights weekly and this additional measure may be taken.

The state health authorities are urging all communities to take active steps for better sanitation, remembering the meningitis epidemic of last winter, which was believed to be largely due to lack of sanitary methods. It is believed that by instituting clean ups early this winter, the danger from that and other sources can be reduced to a minimum.

OVERALL FILES ANOTHER SUIT

Seeks Cancellation of Lease Held by Producers Company on 477 1-2 Acres

H. A. Overall today filed suit in the district court against the Producers Oil company, et al, seeking cancellation of the lease upon 477 1-2 acres and asking $60,000 damages. The suit was filed by Davidson and Davidson, attorneys of Dallas.

The petition, which is a lengthy one, charges that the Producers company, the Texas company, G. W. Mason, W. B. Corlett, Frank Cullinan and E. W. Keenan entered into a conspiracy to secure a lease on Overall's land at nominal cost, and recites numerous alleged facts, also set forth in the previous suit brought by Overall, among them being the allegation of "sleight of hand" performances by Mason in the pretended destruction of the lease.

Twenty Million Immigrants For Texas Last Year.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15—Texas has been chosen as the home of 19,902 immigrants who have come to America during the past year. The progressive wide awake state seems to appeal to the foreigner whose great aim in life when he comes to the United States is that of making money. Comparatively few of the immigrants become members of the professional world. There are some editors and a somewhat larger number of teachers.

Those foreigners who come here from the countries in the southern part of Europe frequently settle in some of the southern states here. The Greeks maintain that the climate of Texas is not much unlike that of Greece and the soil the homesick calls for the fatherland in the interests of earning a livelihood in the new land.

The general class of foreigners enter the commercial world and interest themselves in farming, carpentering, plumbing and various industrial pursuits.

The Texas Penitentiary System

This is the last [illegible] of seven articles on the Texas Penitentiary prisoners' business management of the system discussed improvements in penitentiaries and prison farms the laws governing same treatment of [illegible] etc.

By Will H. Mayes

The State pays ten cents per day [illegible] under the new law to convicts under what is known as the ten cents per diem. This small sum is paid to the convict depending relatively [illegible] to his [illegible] relatives this sum is paid to him on his discharge from prison. There are some who would deny the payment to the convicts not only of wages but there are very few in the State who would care to deal in such a [illegible] way with the prisoners. A provision for the forfeiture of this sum for misconduct or violation of prison rules has a salutary effect upon the discipline. Provision is also made for paying the prisoners for overtime or to work required in extreme necessities on Sundays. Instead of cutting of this ten cents per diem to well behaved prisoners it would keep the minimum amount ten cents per day and in the discretion of the prison officials would stimulate those who are more capable and who do better work by offering them additional compensation for extra results. This policy works well in all outside industries and should prove even more efficacious in dealing with prisoners many of whom are keenly appreciative of even small favors.

There are some of the provisions of the act though that serve no real good purpose. Under the law when the family of a convict who dies in prison requests it the deceased prisoner must be embalmed and shipped to any point in the state desired by the relatives the expense to be borne by the State. Such distinction is not conferred upon others who die away from home too poor to meet the expenses of shipping their remains to other points and it is rather a maudlin sentiment that tries to do more for prisoners than for others.

Another provision of the law requires the State to give the discharged convict transportation to any point in Texas called for by him, instead of the place from which he was sentenced as under the old law. Prisoners take advantage of this and call for tickets to El Paso, Amarillo or Dalhart, cash their tickets at Houston or some other nearby point and pocket the difference. This provision is a temptation to the prisoner to start at once upon dishonest ways and is a positive loss to him besides costing the state some $15,000 a year according to the prison estimates.

There is one provision of the new law intended to guard the rights of the convicts which in my opinion really works hardship on the state. The law should be founded upon the wisdom and experience, as well as upon the habits and customs of the people and no effort should be made to treat convicts in any way better than others following similar pursuits are treated. The ten hour law applies all right to work within the prison walls but it works to the states disadvantage in farming operations. Every farmer in Texas will tell you that he could not successfully operate a farm on a ten hour day throughout the year. In the summer months the farmers work more than ten hours a day, they do well to get in ten hours in the spring and fall and in the winter can hardly work eight hours in daylight. To make an invariable ten hour rule throughout the year would prove ruinous to farming and therefore no farmer attempts it. Under the new law convicts on farms as well as in the penitentiaries can not be worked more than ten hours a day except in cases of extreme and unavoidable emergency and for such work they must be paid ten cents an hour. This ten hours must include time spent in going to and returning from work and convicts must not be made to travel faster than a walk in going to and coming from the fields. It was told that under this law the average working time in summer days is reduced to about eight and a quarter hours and in the winter when necessity requires that the prisoners be inside the lines before dark the time is still further cut down. Last year in the rush of the harvesting season rains kept the farm hands indoors for seventeen days continuously, the men idle all the time yet when they went to work again the state could not get even eight hours a day from the labor.

This provision was doubtless made with the thought of the long overtime at hard labor on the railroad contracts or on the contract farms under the old system but it is proving a heavy drain on the state farms and one that other farmers say they could not stand in their work. The law should be amended so that the average day's labor on the farms may be kept within ten hours, allowing the prison officials discretion in regulating the hours to the seasons. Common sense business methods should prevail even in efforts at prison reforms.

Some arrangement should be made for frequent visit to the penitentiaries and farms either from the Governor or from some other state official. These visits should not be hurried inspection trips but should be of sufficient duration and frequency to allow a thorough understanding of the system and its needs from every view point. It is true that the law contemplates that the commissioners shall look closely after penitentiary matters, and they are doing it well, but they realize the great problems with which they have to deal and that such visitation prove helpful to them as well as to the prisoners. I am told that Governor Colquitt is the first governor who has made such visitations since Governor Lanham was in office. It is really too much to expect the Governor of Texas to do all this and attend to his many other official duties. The last visit of Governor Colquitt and the interest shown in the entire system and in the prisoners, could but have had a beneficial effect.

The system has outgrown itself in a business way just as towns and business enterprises frequently grow beyond their capital. Still much greater development is needed in order to be able to produce the best results. Every man who has himself undertaken large problems understands how this can be true. Indebtedness is itself often the best indication of business opportunities.

The only vexing or at all uncertain financial problem connected with the prison system is the best way to handle the iron industry and the state railroads. I do not know at this writing just what Governor Colquitt and the commissioners have done as to the lease to the Pennsylvania parties, but if a lease can be obtained which does not carry with it an option of purchase at a low price, and which insures the operation of the rock plant at a fair rental, keeps the mines active and gives the state railroad tonnage that seems for the present the chief troubles at Rusk. I presume that this kind of a contract will soon be signed but if it is not done the state itself should arrange to start the furnace and the pipe foundry and to successfully finance the iron industry here. I do not hesitate to say this despite the fact that there have been heavy losses and failures there in the past and my conclusion is based on a fairly close study of existing conditions.

The farms should receive the best of attention and should be cultivated along the scientific methods which the state is doing so much to teach and is putting little practicing. The law [illegible] like folly for the state to spend thousands of dollars in teaching [illegible] agricultural methods and then adhere to ante bellum ways [illegible] when the farms at Rusk, Huntsville and in Fort Bend and Freeman counties afford such excellent opportunities for the state to demonstrate what can be done on the different soils of those sections. Every state farm should be an experimental farm under the most highly trained [illegible] that [illegible] is [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] of Oyster Creek [illegible] for irrigating [illegible] and the [illegible] canal [illegible] lack of water. Canteens [illegible] excellent silage but the state [illegible] silos and [illegible] of this fine [illegible] wasted while Texas [illegible] year for meats for [illegible] about [illegible] work stock, $40,000 [illegible] cloth for prisoners [illegible] and leather for their shoes [illegible] well be produced by the prisoners [illegible] At least half of the [illegible] $1 [illegible] and the [illegible] flour [illegible] from [illegible] furnishing themselves with most of their necessities from the penitentiaries and farms, the convicts could be utilized to supply all the other state institutions with many of the things they require. Not a thing on the farms should be allowed to go to waste that can possibly be used anywhere to advantage by the state. No expense should be spared to bring the equipment of the factories and of the farms up to the present day requirements even though the initial outlay to the state may be large.

Bear in mind that in these suggestions no reflections are made upon the administration of the commissioners. What they have done, and are doing with their limited resources and with the restrictions thrown around them is little short of marvelous. The commissioners appear to be most capable men doubtless as good as the state could find but there are limitations to the aptitudes and the capabilities of all men.

In my opinion which is merely offered for what little it may be worth after only a few weeks of cursory study of the situation, Texas needs first to place its penitentiary system on a proper financial basis. At present the commissioners are carrying large loans for much of which eight per cent interest is being paid. That in itself is a great load. For lack of proper funds many other essential improvements and changes can not be made. A city laboring under such disadvantages would issue bonds bearing a low rate of interest and make the required improvements. Large corporations and business concerns of every kind would do the same thing. The state should do this in no long time interest bearing sanitary bonds and provide for retiring the bonds out of the earnings of the system.

Give the present law with a few slight changes need for time to make a showing. Furnish the capital with which to operate the system like other business enterprises would be managed, continue the humane treatment of prisoners, [illegible] also [illegible] leaning from [illegible] towards the [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] will be [illegible] to the minimum.

Cottolene

is ⅓ richer than butter

Cottolene is not for table use, but it is the best cooking fat for all shortening and frying. If you are using butter in your kitchen you are paying at least twice as much as necessary to secure the same results with Cottolene.

Another point of economy about Cottolene — use one-third less than you would of butter or lard.

Cottolene is a clean, pure product, and makes wholesome, healthful, digestible food, because it is a vegetable and not an animal fat.

Cottolene is never sold in bulk — always in air-tight tin pails, which protect it from dirt, dust and odors. It is always uniform and dependable.

Rev. Hill's Lecture An Inspiration.

The lecture delivered at the Methodist church last Thursday night by Rev. J. W. Hill was fairly well attended and was well worth listening to.

Rev. Hill is a good speaker, having an easy, yet dignified bearing. His use of English showed careful study and a broad acquaintance with the mother tongue. He carried his hearers along with him, in thought, presenting many examples of the value of strenuous endeavor.

While the lecture was intended to stimulate and encourage greater interest in educational enterprise among the young men and young women it was good for both old and young.

It is understood that other lecturers are to be secured by the school management, and it is hoped that the parents and patrons of Iowa Park will encourage and support this very commendable offer to build up an interest in educational work in our midst.—Iowa Park Herald.

UNTIL DEATH CALLED

English Priests Passed Through Storm of Persecution.

Secret Places Where They Were Forced to Remain in Hiding Are Still Being Found in Homes Throughout Britain.

London, England.—For a hundred and fifty years or so after the reformation Roman Catholic priests were relentlessly persecuted, and if discovered in the performance of the rites of his religion a priest was put to death. But in spite of that there were during those times many priests in England who considered it their duty to brave death rather than cease to do what they considered their duty.

After the reformation many priests were concealed in the country houses of the Catholic nobility and gentry. Their hiding places were unknown to all except the master and mistress of the house and possibly to one or two old servants. As a rule, the priests did not stay for long in the priest hole at any one place, but a certain Father Blackhall spent many years thus concealed in the house of the Viscountess Melgum in Scotland.

There are many old houses which still boast priest holes. There is one in an old manor in East Sussex, which contains a good example of such a chamber. Artfully contrived among the huge chimney stacks in the roof is a small room, perhaps twelve feet in length and six in breadth. Until it was broken into a few years ago no one living knew of its existence, for the hidden stairway which led up to it through the ceiling had rotted away and been covered in again, and the little room itself was almost hermetically sealed with the yellow straw plaster, which was the best material known to plasterers of former times.

Chill and wretched must the priest have found it, the daylight visible only through a few small chinks in the roof, the wind penetrating through the tiles and beneath the drafty eaves. At night he had the bats for company, the hard boards, with maybe an armful of straw for a couch, and the fear of capture ever looming large before him.

Of houses famous for their priest holes, perhaps the most renowned is Hendlip house, some four miles from Worcester, and said to have been built in the reign of Elizabeth by John Abingdon and a devoted partisan of Gable End of Hendlip House.

Mary, Queen of Scots. Thomas Abingdon, son of the builder, took great pains to make the house a safe hiding place, and hardly a room in the mansion was there but could be entered secretly. For several weeks in 1606 Father Garnet, who later paid the penalty of having known of the gunpowder plot, was hidden at Hendlip.

The government was made aware of his knowledge of the plot by the confession of one Catesby, Bates' servant. Suspicion having fallen on Hendlip as the priest's place of concealment, Sir Henry Bromley was sent thither with instructions which show that the government had some experience in the finding of hidden holes.

The house was searched and searched again from top to bottom, but Sir Henry could discover nothing but some scholarly books. Mr. and Mrs. Abingdon, of course, denied any knowledge of Father Garnet. Four days after beginning the search two men, half dead with hunger, gave themselves up, but they proved to be servants. Several days passed, and the searchers were in despair, when the confession of another conspirator condemned to die made it certain that a priest lay concealed at Hendlip house. When ten days had passed Father Garnet surrendered and with him a Jesuit named Hall. Lack of fresh air had forced them from their hiding place, not lack of food, for we are told "they had nutritive drinks passed to them by a reed, through a little hole in the chimney, that backed another chimney, into a woman's chamber." They could hardly move in their hiding place. Their limbs were much swollen.

Still there are some of us who can't see why the Balkan war should make the Thanksgiving Turkey any dearer

The press dispatches say that Gen. Felix Diaz is still confined in a prison at Vera Cruz. Therefore, the rumor of his escape is not true.

The cabinet makers are still on the job, and by the time President-elect Wilson gets ready to make his selection he will have a splendid bunch to pick from.

An Abilene citizen has given a site of twenty-five acres to the city for a park. His action suggests that some Wichitan can hand his name down to future generations as a generous and patriotic citizen by doing likewise.

President-elect Wilson is receiving praise just now from many who only a few months ago contemptously referred to him as "Professor Wilson," or as the Schoolmaster. After he acts on the application to get their feet under the pie-counter some of them will begin to denounce him the same way they did before he received his nomination.

The largest number of bales of cotton ginned by Wichita County for any single year prior to this year has been in the neighborhood of 11,000, but this year is going to prove a record breaker, and the total for the county will not miss 15,000 bales very far. In addition to the large cotton crop, splendid grain and feed crops were made and altogether this has been the most productive crop year for the county in its history. In addition to the large crops, better prices are being paid for them than ever before

Ratification by only two more states is needed for the income tax amendment to make the required three fourths There are still ten states to act on the amendment and its approval seems certain The states that have not yet acted are Delaware, Florida Massachusetts, New Jersey, New Mexico, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Virginia West Virginia and Wyoming It is quiet probable that all the states will ratify the amendment and it is regard[illegible] be ratified by Massachusetts, New Jersey and New Mexico The amendment it will be remembered, was made necessary by the ruling of the Supreme Court When it is adopted and an income tax law is passed by congress one of the obstacles to tariff reform will be removed. With the revenues which an income tax will provide there will no longer be the bogey of lack of revenue to lower tariff duties that the friends of privilege have so long displayed.

Intelligence is no disqualification in this court. You can't keep people from reading newspapers Can you go into the jury box and change your opinion by hearing true testimony first hand? —District Judge J W Swayne to the Sneed Jury at Fort Worth

The time is not far distant let us hope when other trial judges will view this matter in the light Judge Swayne views it It is ridiculous, in this enlightened age to place the liberty or life of a person in the hands of twelve men, who, in order to qualify as jurors will have to admit they have not heard of the case by word of mouth or through the public prints or, in the event they have heard of it, have formed no idea whatever as to the guilt or innocence of the person on trial It is perfectly natural for people of intelligence to form some sort of opinion on the slightest kind of information but that does not necessarily mean that the opinions they have formed are fixed and cannot be changed upon hearing the evidence as sworn to by witnesses True testimony at first hand ought to make a better and more lasting impression on the mind of any man who is qualified to set as a juror than mere talk or newspaper accounts There should be more men like Judge Swayne on the bench, and when that happens the result will be the rendering of more intelligent jury verdicts.

Chief of Police Gwinn has returned from Lawton, where he went as a witness in a horse theft case. The theft was committed five years ago Two young men stole some ponies from an Indian at Cache and rode them to Wichita Falls where they were captured and the ponies recovered. One of the young men pleaded guilty and has served out his two years term in the penitentiary. The other jumped his bond and was only recently recaptured. He was given a five year sentence.

Acreage Near Town

Will become very valuable some day with the growth of Wichita Falls. We can sell you the cheapest acreage around Wichita Falls in blocks of 2½ acres each for $300, and on monthly installments. Think of it—the same as fourteen city lots for less than $25.00 a lot if the same land was divided into lots. This land can be irrigated and makes an ideal place to work in town and supply your own table by raising chickens, a garden, orchard and keeping a cow. Many others are doing the same at Southside Acres where we are selling acreage tracts at less than any acreage the same distance from the heart of the town can be bought.

Southside Acres is 1 3-4 miles east of Rostoffice and adjoins the City of Wichita Falls on the southeast corner.

More than half of the Addition has been sold and the remaining tracts are going fast. Let us drive you out while you can get choice locations.

New Feature of War In Balkan Is Unity

(Indianapolis News)

The remarkable feature of the present warfare in the Balkans is the fact that four Balkan kingdoms are united in their opposition to Turkey. The latter country has hitherto had a comparatively easy problem in dealing with them because of their intense jealousy, often breaking out in bloody clashes among themselves. It has been remarked that by the irony of fate Turkey's efforts at reform have, in some degree at least, tended to create this new condition of a united enemy. For the wily old deposed sultan used skilfully to foment the ill feeling among the Balkan kingdoms, so as to keep them at one another's throats. The dropping of such tactics by the new government has facilitated the creation of a spirit of union.

This new situation has its problems for the great powers of Europe as well as for Turkey. They, as well as the Balkan kingdoms, have their jealousies as to any possible advantage that may be gained by them through the driving of Turkish power back from Europe. Balkan war possibilities have been a perpetual matter of speculation, often rising to fear of a fearful outbreak involving the whole of Europe.

Rival Claims on Macedonia.

The scene of the present hostilities covers the whole of that part of Eu- their orchards and burned their vil- is usually called the Balkan peninsula—a convenient though vague expression, as E. Alexander Powell remarks in the current number of American Review of Reviews. "To comprehend the present situation," he continues, "it must be understood that the population of Macedonia is composed in about equal parts of Greeks and Slavs (Bulgarians and Serbs) strongly tinctured with Albanians, the Turks being in a decided minority. Greeks, Bulgarians, Serbs and Albanians, each consider themselves the only rightful heirs to Macedonia and each of them has been for years past engaged in strengthening their claims in their own peculiar way.

"As a result of this racial rivalry, the Balkan nations, particularly the Greeks and Turks, have for more than twenty years waged a bloody warfare in Macedonia by means of armed bands of desperadoes. Greek bands, slipping into Macedonia from the south, have murdered every Bulgarian on whom they could lay their hands, destroyed the crops of the Bulgarian inhabitants, chopped down and shrewdly perceiving that as long lages. Then the Bulgarian bands, sweeping down through the northern passes, would retaliate by committing precisely the same atrocities on the Greek inhabitants of Macedonia, the operations of both frictions being characterized by fiendist cruelty and wholesale destruction of property.

Turkey's Shrewd Policy.

"As a rule the Turkish government has made but little effort to bring this intolerable state of affairs to an end, shrewdly perceiving that as long as the various Christian races were engaged in fighting each other they could not combine against the Turks At intervals, however, the Turks, exasperated beyond endurance, would take a hand in their turn, and woe to the Christian, be he Bulgar, Greek or Serb, who fell into their hands. From my own investigations in Macedonia, however, I think it safe to say that, in recent years at least, for every atrocity the Turks have committed in Macedonia, the Greeks, Bulgarians and Serbs have committed four.

"These guerrilla campaigns in Maceondia were planned solely in the hope that the horrors which they caused would compel the powers to intervene, the Greeks believing that in the event of such an intervention Macedonia would be turned over to them, while the Bulgarians were equally confident that they would receive the prize. It will be seep, therefore, that the cry of humanity, so powerful in 1887, when the Turks themselves were the chief actors in the Macedonian tragedy, has been practically taken away from the Christians by the horrible atrocities perpetrated by both Greeks and Bulgars in recent years.

Interests Now Pooled.

"Now, the remarkable thing about the present situation is that the four Balkan kingdoms, which have hitherto been at each other's throat have suddenly and secretly formed a combination—pooled their interests in Macedonia, as it were—and have evidently come to an agreement that, if they are victorious in the hazardous adventure on which they are embarking, they will share the profits between them. We have therefore, the sudden appearance in Europe of a new and most formidable corporate power—the Balkan confederation.

Despairing of obtaining the partition of Macedonia through European intervention, and tardily appreciating that the game they had been playing was as foolish as it was wicked, they suddenly decided that the only hope of getting what they were after lay in their joining forces, a union which has been effected with a secrecy and celerity almost unexampled in the history of European diplomacy. Whether the allied kingdoms are sufficiently powerful to defeat the Turk is, however, a matter of grave doubt. Even if they should succeed in doing so, it is almost a certainty that they will not be permitted by the powers to annex a foot of Turkish soil.

Bulgaria's Army Strongest.

"The most dangerous factor in the present conflict" is "Bulgaria. The Russian general, Kuropatkin, attending the maneuvers of the Bulgarian army some years ago by way of being complimentary, remarked that the Bulgarians were the Japanese of the near east. They have never forgotten that remark. Like the Japanese they take themselves very seriously, and like them again, they firmly believe that they have a large place on the scroll of destiny. Ever since it declared its complete independence in 1908, Bulgaria has been preparing to fight Turkey. The Turks know this. A Turkish official recently admitted quite frankly to the writer that Turkey had no wish to fight though not because she was afraid of being defeated. 'What good will it do us to fight?' he asked. 'We fought and whipped the Greeks, but we lost Crete. We shall fight and whip the Bulgarians, but we will lose Macedonia.'

"For its size the Bulgarian army is the best equipped and most efficient in Europe, though it has never been tested in actual warfare. It means business, however. Every detail is attended to; every probability provided for. Conscription prevails Every sixth man in the country is a soldier. Not till he is forty-five years of age does the Bulgarian escape liability to serve. The officers take their profession seriously, and the men are hardly uncomplaining and enduring. The actual war strength of the army, which is modeled thoroughly after that of Russia, is probably very close to 250,000 men with five hundred guns.

Strength Chiefly Defensive.

"Its strength is believed by military experts to lie, however, chiefly in the defensive. It is doubtful if the Bulgarians have the qualities most essential for successful attack. Most important of all, it is extremely doubtful if the nation possesses a war chest at all commensurate with the size of the army to be supported. It has cost Italy very close to a million dollars a day to prosecute her ineffective Tripolitanian campaign and a struggle between Bulgaria and Turkey would prove, incalculably, more costly. Yet the foreign bankers have unanimously declined to advance Bulgaria the comparatively insignificant sum of a million dollars, not to mention the twenty millions for which she originally asked.

"Some one has said of the Bulgars "they are a practical people and their gratitude is chiefly a sense of favors to come." Likewise, they are a perennially dissatisfied people They are never content with what they possess but are always reaching out for something more. They are a suspicious people, and do not like foreigners, but this they excuse by saying that they have lived under the Turks for five hundred years This is their stock excuse for all their sins. Indeed, it is difficult to see what they would do if they did not have the Turk for a scapegoat.

No Dishonor to Black Boots.

"The Bulgarians are the most industrious of the populations of southeastern Europe. They are not ashamed of any honest form of work no matter how menial. The last time I went to Bulgaria a bright young Bulgarian, whose boot blacking establishment I was accustomed to patronize asked me if he might give me a letter of introduction to his uncle, who, he modestly remarked, was a person of some influence in Sofia Weeks later, when unpacking my belongings in the Grand Hotel d'Bulgarie in Sofia, I came across the letter Sofia is a small town, and everybody knows everybody else, so as I was going out of the hotel one day I showed the letter to the concierge and asked if he had eve rheard of the person to whom it was addressed 'Ever heard of him, monsieur?' he exclaimed 'Why he's the prime minister of Bulgaria!' I might add that when I presented the letter to the prime minister he inquired with deep interest after his nephew's welfare, and was in no way apologetic because he had chosen the occupation of a bootblack.

King Ferdinand.

"Though King Ferdinand is a shrewd and calculating ruler, he is by no means popular, either at home or abroad. He is haughty, arrogant, overbearing, vain and pompous and inordinantely fond of display. He is a grandson of Louis Phillippe of France, and has many of that monarch's undesirable characteristics. Being a scion of the princely houses of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha and of Bourbon, he is related to nearly every crowned head in Europe None of them take him very seriously, however. He lives in a solid, drab-colored palace surrounded by high walls, and rarely stirs out unless escorted by a detachment of cavalry. He is an aristocrat ruling a democratic people, a Roman Catholic set over a Greek orthodox nation"

Mrs. Della Long Unable to Stand On Her Feet More Than a Few Minutes at a Time.

Pendergrass, Ga.—Mrs. Della Long, of this place, in a recent letter, says: "For five or six years, I suffered agonies with womanly troubles.

Often, I couldn't sit up more than a few minutes at a time, and if I stood on my feet long, I would faint.

I took Cardui, and it helped me immediately. Now, I can do my work all the time, and don't suffer like I did."

Take Cardui when you feel ill in any way—weak, tired, miserable, or under the weather. Cardui is a strength-building tonic medicine for women.

It has been found to relieve pain and distress caused by womanly troubles, and is an excellent medicine to have on hand at all times.

Injured Employes Get Eighteen Out of Hundred Dollars

Houston, Texas, Nov. 15.—The Texas Welfare Commission's report on compensation to Employes for Casualties Occurring in Course of Employment, prepared by Tom Finty Jr and appearing in the press has created considerabel comment in shipping circles in this city.

The statement that out of every $100 paid the injured workman by the employer only $18 of it reaches the employe brings out in a startling manner the waste in our present system and it is well known that the shipper must bear the burden. A workmens' compensation act along the line down in Mr Finty's report is considered necessary by the business interests of this city

To Perpetuate Memory of a President

PROPOSED McKINLEY MEMORIAL BUILDING

MONUMENTS and memorials have been erected to the memory of distinguished statesmen warriors litterateurs and heroes of various characters for many centuries and the types of architecture of these tokens of love and loyalty have assumed as many distinctive designs as are indicated by the character whom they commemorate as well as that of the artist or architect who designs them

The love and loyalty of one man a friend for one whom he had admired throughout his momentous career will be fittingly portrayed in the magnificent Birthplace Memorial building which is to be erected in Niles O. to the memory of its first citizen the late President William McKinley through the efforts of Hon. Joseph G. Butler Jr millionaire philanthropist and capitalist of Youngstown.

The plans and specifications of this majestic shrine are now completed and a portrait of the building is herewith presented It is expected that work on the construction will be commenced in the early spring

Plan to Raise Funds

The conception of this memorial has been upon the mind and heart of Mr Butler since the death of the martyred president and he always expressed the belief that Niles was the fitting place for such a memorial Although he contributed liberally to the funds for the majestic mausoleum at Canton he was then evolving a plan to erect a memorial in Niles himself but on taking the matter under due consideration he felt that there were many who cherished the memory of the great statesman as deeply as he who would feel that they were deserving of the opportunity to contribute to such a cause A number of friends were consulted and Mr Butler was accorded the greatest encouragement He planned to make it a thoroughly national movement and decided that it would be a security to the enterprise to appeal to congress for a charter with the understanding that the government was not called upon to provide any of the funds These are to be raised by private subscription and a bill was accordingly introduced into congress by Representative W Aubrey Thomas who represented the old Nineteenth district which was passed without a dissenting voice in a most stormy period at the close of the third session of the Sixty first congress and Joseph G Butler Jr of Ohio Myron T Herrick of Ohio Jacob G Schmidlapp of Ohio John G Milburn of New York and W A Thomas of Ohio were appointed members of a commission to compose a body corporate which would be known by the name of the National McKinley Birthplace association, to perpetuate the name and achievements of the late President William McKinley by erecting and maintaining in the city of Niles O his birthplace a monument and memorial building

Will Serve Many Purposes

Impressing upon the minds of his associates that his plan was to establish a building far removed from the usual monumental pile which would be a dignified structure of noble architecture to serve as a civic center for the people of the city to contain an auditorium for public meetings a relic room where documents relics and other valuable mementoes of the McKinley period would be stored and strikingly and rare paintings and portraits of notable people connected with that period will be placed Another compartment will be given over to the free public library An effort will also be made to allow space for portraits of notable men associated with McKinley's career both as a citizen and as a statesman and also illustrations and other representations of the industrial developments of the McKinley policies A room will be placed at the disposal of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Women's Relief Corps and here will be found many relics of McKinley's military career in the Civil war as a private promoted to the rank of a major and also of the Spanish American war

In order to allow the people of Niles to show their appreciation of this great gift it was deemed a courtesy by the trustees of the association to allow them to make such a contribution as they felt in their power to give and in order to promote the general good feeling Mr Butler and his aids came to Niles and conducted a six day campaign Previous to this Mr Butler had headed the list with a contribution of $5 000 and each of the trustees had contributed $1 000 each A $5 000 subscription was secured from Andrew Carnegie and large sums were pledged by many other philanthropists During the six day campaign conducted in the city over $58 000 was raised

Fraternal organizations clubs and individuals in the city worked and contributed freely and a splendid spirit prevailed throughout the entire campaign Telegraph and telephone connections were established at headquarters and a committee was in charge of the responses to the messages sent out This method of raising the $100 000 which the building is designed to cost has met with the most sincere approval of the people of Niles since it gives them the assurance that they have a part in the enterprise

The building is the first of its type to be designed in the world and is a fitting memorial to the great statesman In the design an effort is made to portray to the present and future generations the noble character of President McKinley which shall endure for ages also the great philanthropic thought of the founder of the movement whereby Niles is to receive this great gift, the lifelong friend and staunch supporter of the martyred president Hon Joseph G Butler

The great generosity of the American people is being displayed in the many hearty responses to telegrams and the large volume of encouraging letters being received daily by Mr Butler from almost every state in the Union and many foreign posts

Englishman Made the Declaration That a Neighbor Cast a Spell Over Him

A man applied to the magistrate at Union Hall for redress of various injuries inflicted upon him by a person who he said, had long held him in subjection by the power of witchcraft The person complained of had for some time been his opposite neighbor and although it had been his constant study not to offend him being well aware of the influence he possessed with the powers of darkness yet he had in some way or other, been so unfortunate as to incur his displeasure and severely he had suffered for it both in person and property, as the wizard had at different times destroyed his clothes tainted his provisions prevented the smoke from ascending the chimneys soured the liquor in his cellar and on various occasions when the complainant had been under the necessity of going out to business had so fascinated his powers of vision that on his return home all his efforts to discover his own door had proved ineffectual and he had frequently been under the necessity of applying to his neighbors to conduct him home —London Globe

Some experience of the first days of schoolteaching in the Philippines are described by Alice M Kelly in the Manila Times She went among the Igorots in November, 1901 The natives were frightened at the sight of an American woman and not even prized dainties like sardines could bring them to her They spoke no English or Spanish and she had not a word of Igorote But she resolved to break this silence and catching one old man who could not run she repeated over and over again Good morning Mrs Kelly till at last to escape he repeated the words after her Not long after she heard that Americans were being greeted regardless of sex with a cheery Good morning Mrs Kelly And oddest of all in a court room several Igorotes solemnly walked up to the judge's bench and bowing deeply said Good morning Mrs Kelly evidently well satisfied that they had done the correct thing

LOUISVILLE COMMENT ON THE GIRL FROM TOKIO.

The Louisville Herald has the following comment on "The Girl From Tokio" here tomorrow for an afternoon matinee and night performance:

"The Girl From Tokio" the Shubert offering for the last half of the week, with daily matinee, a farcical comedy of four acts of unusual merit, played yesterday afternoon and last night to capacity houses.

From the rise of the curtain amusing complications evolve which put the proper amount of spice and spirit into the farce which mark it as a success. The scene is laid at the residence of Bartley Swift, Hastings-on-the-Hudson, an ingenious prevaricator whose errant tales place him in an amusingly embarrassing position from start to finish.

On a visit to Tokio Swift has an "affaire de coeur" with the beautiful Nancy Noyes, the widow of Emond Miller. Upon his return home, who should turn up at his villa but this charming former actress, the cause of his subsequent dilemma.

Expecting a governess for his wife's sister, Swift introduces his friend from Tokio for the part to temporarily relieve the situation. Most amusing situations arise, especially after the arrival of the Count Boni de Brissac, the avowed suitor of Nancy Noyes The proper governess finally puts in her appearance which further complicates matters for Swift.

The troubles of Swift are eventually ended when the identity of Nancy Noyes is made known and he returns to the bosom of his wife

Miss Julia Morton, as Nancy Noyes, is in precisely the role which shows to best advantage her great amount of talent She is an accomplished actress who has learned the fine arts of the stage.

John Raymond as Prof Christian Manners, private tutor, shows marked ability as a master of pantomime and is a performer of rare quality.

The remainder of the cast include the following: Miss Adelaide Matthews, Miss Lee Hobbs Martin, Miss May Holton, Miss Jane Hanan, Miss Sherry Snyder and Maurice Bardwell.

The company, as a whole has been extremely well selected and each character was portrayed to the limit of perfection possible in such an offering.

Only about 1 per cent of the total wealth of the United States is invested in church property, but, according to Dr Booker Washington, over 8 per cent of the wealth of the negroes of the country is invested in this way. They have 35,000 churches, with 3,700,000 members.

NOT OFTEN

It's seldom that you have a chance to buy genuine Michigan Sweet Cider, Boiled Cider and Apple Cider Jelly

We have received direct from the orchards of Michigan a shipment of these goods, and they are "as fine as silk." ¶Cider Jelly is entirely different than anything else in this line and Southern Michigan and Northern Ohio is the only section we know of where it is produced. There is nothing as good to serve with meats. ¶If you know what it is, we've said enough. If you don't, you have overlooked a bet. You will want some boiled cider for your Holiday cookery. Order the sweet cider while it's fresh.
